

BAC proposing 4-cent tax rate increase

By BILL WINTER

GRANITE CITY — Belleville Area College trustees last week scheduled a Nov. 5 election on increasing BAC District 22's tax rate limit by 14 cents.

Meeting at the former Granite City Center, now Granite City Campus, the board acknowledged its 5-campus status, newly approved by the Illinois Board of Higher Education. With the upgrading to multiple full-service campuses, President Bruce R. Wissore becomes chancellor of the eight-county college system.

GCC's president is Don Kassing, whose title had been provost. Dr. Wayne Clark is president of the Belleville campus. Larry Schmalenberger is president of the new Red Bud campus, which will be dedicated Aug. 9, with a public open house following on Aug. 17.

The referendum will call for raising the rate limit for each $100 valuation by 9 cents for education (from 13.2 to 22.2 cents) and increasing the limit by 5 cents for the building fund (from 2.8 to 7.8 cents).

Even though BAC also has a 3.5-cent rate for bond retirement, all the trustees have pledged not to utilize more than a total of 30 cents in any year. The last of the bonds is to be retired in 1992.

CHAIRMAN AVERY Schermer commented that the board and administration have attempted to plan carefully for the district through the year 2000. "We won't be coming back to the trough in a year or two asking for an additional increase," he told the audience.

The present rate limits have remained unchanged since the district was formed in 1967. In the past 18 years, enrollment has risen 600 percent and the geographic area has expanded 300 percent.

The proposed new education rate cites "expenses of upgrading support services and career courses at Granite City and Red Bud and improving programs and services for senior citizens at the multi-purpose center in Belleville."

RENOVATIONS AT GCC are planned, it was noted in the resolution outlining the higher rate for operations, building and maintenance.

Also mentioned was "participation with the State of Illinois and private organizations in proposed projects for construction of a recreation and civic center complex."

It is proposed to construct a $10 million fine arts and civic center in Belleville and to join with the Southwest Illinois YMCA to build a $12 million indoor-outdoor recreation and physical fitness complex.

BELLEVILLE AREA College serves 20,000 students annually in Madison, St. Clair, Bond, Monroe, Montgomery, Perry, Washington and Randolph counties. It teaches the freshman and sophomore years as well as varied classes for adults.

Majority approval for the new rates will be sought in the November election, when school board members and college trustees also will be chosen. Added yearly cost of the BAC tax proposal is estimated at $21 for a $60,000 home assessed at $200,000, or about 6 cents a day.

Trustee Elizabeth Jenner spoke on the importance of stressing education as BAC's chief goal. Trustee Curt Eckert said the rate program will need to be explained in great detail to obtain the backing of financially distressed farmers.

A 6-0 VOTE by the board was recorded, including Schermer, Jenner, Eckert, Patricia Bartsokas, Robert Dintelman and a student member, Susanne Briggs. Absent were Wayne Reynolds and Dr. James Vest.

A discussion brought out that a tax proposal was studied five years ago but was postponed due to trustees' and citizens' belief that economies could and should be achieved.

Since then, trustees related, costs have been trimmed significantly. Schermer, the only Granite Cityan on the board, said the Nov. 5 proposal originated in informal talks at a retreat two years ago.

"RARELY DOES a college district have the opportunity to plan some of the innovations we're proposing for the next few years," Schermer remarked at the meeting.

"We're the envy of many community colleges which are struggling to keep the wolf from their door."

Barbara MacDonald was introduced after being appointed as Granite City Campus recruitment specialist at an annual salary of $18,000. Donald Davinroy resigned as a GCC educational specialist, effective Aug. 17.

CHARLES STEPTOE again was named community coordinator and consultant for Madison schools' BAC extension center.

Liberty Mutual will provide worker compensation insurance for the 1983-86 year at a cost of $53,094.

Settlement reached on GC Steel value

GRANITE CITY — Aldermen approved a motion Tuesday night to settle a dispute concerning the assessed valuation of Granite City Steel.

School Board Attorney William Schooley Sr. presented terms of the agreement to the aldermen during an executive session. He is representing taxing districts affected by the Granite City Steel assessment.

Schooley said the terms will be made public when a settlement stipulation is filed with the Property Tax Appeal Board of Illinois on Friday.

THE SETTLEMENT concerns the assessed valuation of the steel plant, located in Granite City and Nameoki townships, for the tax years of 1983 through 1987.

The settlement was reached between attorneys for the two sides after an appraisal of the plant was performed by Ward Township, a nationally-known assessment expert who lives in the Chicago area.

Seven local taxing bodies affected by the plant's assessment agreed to share the cost of the appraisal. Because it spends more than half of local real estate tax dollars, the Board of Education of School District 9 coordinated arrangements for the appraisal.

Schooley said Tuesday he had received approval of the settlement from the Granite City School Board as well as the City Council and the Granite City Town Board.

APPROVAL ALSO was voted by the Granite City Park Board and the Belleville Area College board in separate meetings here last night.

Other taxing bodies involved, but which have not yet acted on the proposed settlement are Nameoki Township and the Metro East Sanitary District.

Schooley said he will file the motion on Friday before he gets consent from some of the taxing bodies, since there has been a response from more than a majority of the seven agencies.

AT ONE POINT, Granite City Steel objected to about four-fifths of its assessment in this county. The plant is part of National Steel Corp., whose parent firm is National Iron Works.

Citing a financial squeeze affecting all domestic steelmakers, the plant noted an array of cost-cutting measures it had placed in effect, and said it needed also to curb its tax obligation.

Because GC Steel is the biggest local taxpayer, governing boards of some of the taxing bodies said a four-fifths cut, leaving only one-fifth, would drastically restrict their ability to continue local governmental services.

STEEL OFFICIALS conferred with the Granite City assessor, indicating they were flexible on the issue. At a Madison County (assessment) Board of Review hearing, the

City Council approves $10 million budget by 11-2 vote

By SUSAN SIGNAIGO-WEICH

GRANITE CITY — A $10 million balanced budget was passed by an 11 to 2 vote of the City Council last night, the largest amount of money the budget has received in recent years.

The vote on the budget proved to be an unusual feature of the council action.

WHEN THE BUDGET was placed on first reading Tuesday night, there were five dissenting votes.

Between Tuesday and Wednesday nights, a total of five aldermen changed their votes on the appropriation.

Mayor Von Dee Cruse met with two of the dissenting aldermen, Everett Morlen and Casmer Skubish, both of the 1st Ward, yesterday afternoon. The discussion apparently caused their change of heart.

THREE OTHER aldermen changed their vote within the 24-hour period. Lloyd Bailey, 5th Ward, and Pat Schuman, 2nd Ward, changed from nay to ye. Alderman Paul Fisk, 3rd Ward, changed his vote from ye to nay.

The budget does not include raises for city workers. It also proposes that the manpower in each city department stay at its current level. The hard-line position taken on city manpower caused the nay vote from Fisk.

"I WAS NOT against placing the budget on first reading but I could not approve it for final passage unless the manning situation was changed," he said.

Fisk said he is especially concerned about manning in the fire department.

According to national standards, the city fire department should have 53 employees. It currently has 41.

"WE'RE COMING dangerously close to having the insurance companies come in here and raise the fire insurance premiums on individuals' homeowner policies," Fisk said. "This may not be an increase in the city budget but it is an increase in your home budget."

Seventh Ward Alderman Jeff Worthen, a member of the finance committee, said he has investigated the effect of the lowered manpower at the fire department on insurance rates.

"I was told insurance premiums could go up anywhere from $5 to $10 a household," he said.

WORTHEN SAID Wednesday he is concerned about the manning of emergency services in the city. He said, however, he thinks it is unlikely that homeowners' insurance policies will rise because of the "undermanning" unless there is a lot of publicity on the subject.

Besides Fisk, the only other alderman to vote against the budget was Sam Whitmer, 2nd Ward.

Whitmer said at the meeting Tuesday he would not reveal his reasons for voting against the budget.

Alderman Sharon Perjak, 4th Ward, was not present at the meeting.

It is not clear at this time whether the budget will cause an increase in taxes for city residents.

CITY COMPTROLLER Joe Miklovic said if things stay the same as they currently are, the tax levy will increase by $4,000. Any change in the tax rate would depend to an extent on the size of the next assessment base.

Several new and/or large expenditures are included in the 1985-86 budget.

A key expenditure is the money appropriated for short-term and long-term solutions to underground sanitary sewer breaks.

ACCORDING TO the budget, $433,000 will be used for the purchase of a jet truck, a TV truck and materials needed to start a grouting program. The money will also be used for bypass pumping, the repair of a sewer break on Alexander Street and the salaries of the six street department employees hired specifically to work on the sewer breaks.

The sum of $527,000 was placed in the budget as a starter fund for a sewer rehabilitation project. The money is to be used to implement a plan being investigated by Henry Bieniecki, assistant to the mayor.

Cruse draws line on city pay, hirings

By SUSAN SIGNAIGO-WEICH

GRANITE CITY — Mayor Von Dee Cruse has taken a hard line on raises for city workers and on the manpower levels in city departments.

During budget meetings Monday and Tuesday nights, Cruse said he is against hirings in any city departments unless proof is shown that the workers are really needed.

"WE'VE BEEN getting by with the manpower at its current levels," he said. "I don't see anyone's house burning down or a large increase in crime because of this."

Cruse said the city needs to tighten its belt.

"Since the recession, we have seen industry around us go down the drain but the city has operated

Former chief backing Churchich for sheriff

By VALERIE EVENDEN

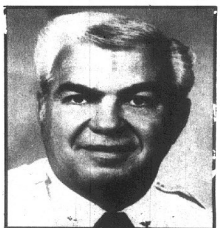

A strong law enforcement team will seek voter approval in the March 1986 primary election for the post of Madison County sheriff, although only one of the two men, Bob Churchich, will be the sheriff candidate. It was announced today.

Former Granite City Police Chief Ronald J. Veizer will not enter the race for sheriff in the 1986 Democratic primary, an action he had been considering since retiring from the police department May 7.

VEIZER ANNOUNCED he will "team up with Hartford Police Chief Bob Churchich, who is actively seeking the nomination as sheriff."

Madison County Sheriff Emil J. Toftant, who has decided not to seek re-election in 1986 after two four-year terms, already has endorsed Churchich's candidacy.

Churchich and Veizer, both widely-experienced police officers, will be joined in their campaign at a future date by a third person, also from the field of law enforcement, it was noted.

"WE WILL BE WORKING together toward a successful campaign on Bob Churchich's behalf," Veizer said, adding his plans also call for joining the sheriff's department upon Churchich's election.

The March nominees of Democrats and Republicans will meet in the November 1986 general election.

The third member of the team is not yet ready to announce his part in the campaign, but the trio's combined experience in law enforcement service will be "close to 100 years," Veizer said.

Many considerations were explored by Veizer before reaching his decision not to run for the office of sheriff.

"THE BIG THING is money," Veizer said Tuesday. "You are talking about a lot of money (that would have to be raised and spent) in running for the sheriff's office," he added.

"We've been battling it around with the Southern Illinois Police Chiefs for some time. I am strong in certain things and Bob has the strength in other areas," he said.

Both Veizer and Churchich are active members of the Southern Illinois Police Chiefs Association, of which Veizer is a past president.

EACH MAN ALSO is a past president of the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police and both are active and respected members of other law enforcement affiliated groups, political observers have said.

Churchich, 56, was born and reared in Alton, where he continues to reside. He is a graduate of Alton High School and attended the University of Illinois at Champaign-Urbana.

He began his career in law enforcement with the Alton Police Department in 1958, retiring from that department in 1980 after being

Township levy hearing slated July 29

By SUSANNE INDELICATO
Staff writer
NAMEOKI — A public hearing on the Nameoki Township and road district levies is set for 7 p.m. Monday, July 29.

This year's proposed road district real estate tax levy of $293,600 is 11.4 percent more than last year's levy of $263,570.

THE TOWNSHIP levy has increased 29.13 percent this year from $238,526 to $308,000.

Township officials said the township's tax rate will remain the same. The increase in the levies takes into account a rise in the assessed valuation of property in the township.

Nameoki Township trustees set the hearing during Monday's town board meeting.

IN OTHER action, a letter from Edwin D. Wood III of Burnham and Flower of Illinois Inc. regarding the township's liability insurance was presented.

Wood urged township officials to contact the township's insurance agent to verify the township's continuation of insurance coverage. Wood noted that significant changes are taking place in the insurance industry, resulting in large premium increases and cancellations.

BURNHAM AND Flower has an insurance package available to Nameoki Township, which is a member of the Township Officials of Illinois, Wood said. The package includes property, comprehensive, general liability, auto and worker's compensation.

Township Supervisor Harry Briggs said he contacted the township's insurance agent, who told him public entities are having problems obtaining liability insurance because of large court judgments in Madison and St. Clair counties.

"We're trying to work out a deal now," Briggs said. "I don't believe we could possibly go self-insured. I believe we'll come out of this OK. If not, we can contact Burnham and Flower."

BRIGGS NOTED the township's current insurance coverage expires in October.

Nameoki Tax Collector Steve Isenburg reported he had collected and distributed $2.4 million in property taxes since May 17.

Trustee Norm Hall noted the state convention for township officials is slated for November.

"I THINK IT is very important as long as we go with the intention of learning," he said. "We do have a number of new trustees on the board."

Trustee Joe Garcia commended the road commission for its work on a drainage project along Breckenridge Lane. Road Commissioner Lee Adams reported a drainage pipe has been installed, while two catch basins will be installed soon.

The trustees approved a resolution to advertise for bids to re-roof a section of the township hall.

Another resolution, authorizing the highway commissioner to purchase two tandem trucks, also was approved.

Benefit set July 27

A story concerning a variety show for the Muscular Dystrophy Association did not contain a complete listing of performers.

Those performers who will be at the show and were not listed earlier are Rebecca Shaver, a tap dancer, and Elisa Hellberg, a Flamenco dancer.

The 6th annual show is slated for 8 p.m. Saturday, July 27, at Polish Hall, 826 Greenwood St., Madison.

Tickets may be purchased at the door the night of the event. Ticket prices are $2 for adults, $3 for senior citizens and $2 for students with an ID or who are accompanied by their parents.

September Fiesta plans finalized

President Robert Robles Sr. led the membership at the July meeting of the Mexican Honorary Commission in prayer and the pledge of allegiance. Discussed at length were plans for the Sept. 7 Fiesta to be held at the MHC Hall.

Bob Robles Jr. will chair the fiesta, and reported that he has signed the band "Los Amigos" to play for the event. Lenny Lore will be in charge of admissions, Theresa Ybarra is chairman of the kitchen, Gordon Bailey will be in charge of the bar and Cathy Moore and Vicki Stuch will be program directors.

Cathy Moore said MHC Folklorico Dancers are working on two new dances to add to the program.

In keeping with the new policy of fulfilling requests to have the dancers perform, they will appear at the Alton Fiesta on Sept. 14. They also will perform at the Eden Care Home in Edwardsville and the Masonic Nursing Home.

Alice Donaldson, chairman of the annual MHC picnic, said the picnic will be held on the club grounds Aug. 11, starting at noon. The MHC will furnish pork steaks and drinks for the covered dish picnic, with Gordon Bailey and Lehe Valencia preparing the steaks. There will be games and prizes for children. If weather is inclement, the picnic will be held in the MHC building.

The group approved applications for membership from Barbara Martin, Joe Donaldson and Sheila Blankley. Linda Garcia was reinstated.

Members approved a donation for teachers' seminars on a drug and alcohol awareness program, and contributed to the Granite City High School Boosters Club.

The Auxiliary will contribute to the Drug and Alcohol Awareness Program and has purchased two sombreros and two serapes from Mexico for the MHC dancers. Board member Antonia Lopez purchased the costume accoutrements while in Mexico on vacation.

After the meeting, a dinner was served. Hostess was Theresa Ybarra.

Sandra L. Murray of 4029 Gaslight Walk, Pontoon Beach, told police July 20 someone removed a wallet from her purse while she was at the K-mart Store. She had left the purse in a dressing room. The wallet contained a $278 check, a $10 check, $80 cash and personal papers.

Plan for informal council meeting fails

GRANITE CITY — An attempt to make the third council meeting every month an informal discussion failed Tuesday night.

Alderman Jake Varadian, 5th Ward, suggested the plan. He said the meeting that falls on the fourth Tuesday of every month could be a time for lengthy discussion on city matters and for committee meetings.

VARADIAN CITED several examples of discussions that have taken 45 minutes or more of a regular council meeting.

"We could get the discussions out of the way at this meeting," Varadian said.

"Then at the regular meetings we won't have to have more discussion on the matter."

Second Ward Alderman Sam Whitmer disagreed with the plan.

"THE SAME THING was advocated four years ago and the council didn't go for it then," he said. "As far as shortening the regular meetings — just because we discussed it at a previous meeting, you're not going to stop me from having my say on the night when we vote on it."

Alderman Sharon Perjak, 4th Ward, brought up another concern.

"Once the aldermen realize that the meeting is not legal and binding, they will have the tendency not to attend," she said. "That would cut us down to two meetings a month and I don't think we meet enough as it is."

THOSE VOTING to keep the meetings as they are (first, third and fourth Tuesdays) were: Whitmer, Everett Morlen, Pat Schuman, Paul Fisk, Casner Skubish, Perjak, Lloyd Bailey and Judy Whitaker.

Aldermen voting to change the fourth Tuesday meeting were Varadian, Michael Modrusic, Phil Miller, Woody Moad, Brett Hanke and Jeff Worthen.

Public comment brief on city budget

GRANITE CITY — During a public hearing on the city budget, only two members of the community expressed their opinions.

Lucille Pierce of 2830 State St. said she is happy with the city services that are offered to residents. She cited street lights, police, fire and ambulance departments, clean streets and the park district as examples of assets in the community.

"What more could you want?" she asked. "You want to raise my taxes, go ahead and raise my taxes."

Alex Toth of 2634 Edison Ave. had no comment on the budget but requested that aldermen consider the installation of a better public address system so aldermen's comments will be more audible to the public.

"We gained benefit when the meetings were moved to the Township Hall because of the increased accessibility for the elderly and the handicapped," he said. "Now you need to make the meetings more audible so we can hear what is said."

THE FORMER Granite City police chief concluded his 31-year career with the Granite City Police Department May 7.

He served as chief for 19 years and was cited for many achievements, including his efforts in helping to obtain the present police headquarters on Madison Avenue.

At the time of his retirement, Veizer was being urged by several area police officials to seek the office of Madison County sheriff, but stressed he had not yet reached a decision whether to run.

If Churchich is successful in obtaining the nomination and winning the election as sheriff, Veizer said, Veizer plans to accept a position in the Madison County Sheriff's Department, working as part of a team with the new sheriff.

Stop or not stop along road?

Illinois State Police are right in revising their procedure for utilizing flashing red lights to halt motorists suspected of law violations.

Three men have been accused of brutally slaying a young woman, 16, last week after employing such revolting lights to persuade her to stop her vehicle along the side of a road in an isolated area near Gillespie.

She was on her way to a wedding reception and was merely trying to abide by the law. Tragically, her life has been cut short; the funeral was held Monday in Downers Grove, west of Chicago.

Now, troopers say, they will allow drivers to travel to safe areas before halting and talking to the police.

Officers in this day and age feel justified in using unmarked autos as well as marked cars during their street and highway patrols. But this presents citizens with life-or-death decisions. Should they cooperate with those assumed to be law enforcement authorities? Or should they be skeptical and attempt to get away from potential abductors?

Red lights thought to have been used by the three killers were found July 19 along old Route 66 north of Mount Olive. This may lead to solving the murder of Bridget Drobney, but it also underscores the fact that criminals often can do the appearance of non-criminals.

Sgt. Steven Brazier of State Police District 11 this week suggested that a woman driving alone at night proceed to a lighted, populated area or a police station before stopping. District Commander Bobby Henry agreed, adding that such motorists would need to observe all traffic laws and not try to elude arresting officers.

We would apply this advice to men drivers as well, and to cars occupied by more than just the driver. There is no way of knowing how many assailants might be in the pursuing car, how strong they are, or how many weapons they might possess.

Concern is intensified by the fact that newer state police cars do not have roof-mounted lights, instead utilizing other lights and also sirens.

There is no sure-fire formula to guarantee personal safety, but state troopers' slightly relaxed policy may prove to be helpful. When in doubt, there is justification in not placing our fate entirely in the hands of strangers who may or may not be worthy of our trust.

Academy could be county asset

A favorable economic and employment impact is being predicted if Madison County succeeds in attracting a national training academy proposed for the National Institute of Corrections.

The facility would employ 100 persons. Each year, it would train 3,000 corrections personnel from federal, state and local governments.

The project also would house other NIC divisions, including library operations, research and evaluation activities.

Two prospective sites, both on the campus of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, are being suggested by the Madison County Board. Those who helped develop the proposal included Lewis and Clark Community College, SIUE and the Leadership Council of Southwestern Illinois.

Although it is believed that about 125 sites are being considered by the U.S. Department of Justice, this area's governmental, university and business leaders are convinced SIUE's library and recreation facilities would make it an outstanding location for the proposed academy.

All are rallying around to put the local university's best foot forward in the competition.

No raises for city workers

Raises for city employees are not in the Granite City budget. They should not be.

The budget calls for the city to break even in this fiscal year.

Raises would mean a deficit.

Perhaps some employees would deserve a raise if the money was there. But it isn't, as evidenced by the break-even budget.

As Mayor Von Dee Cruse said this week, if some city workers are upset about the prospect of not getting raises, that of the city residents who have not had a job in three years.

His was a tough statement. These are tough times.

In this city, under prevailing conditions, thought should be given to trimming the "fat."

"Not in my department," is the natural response. Some would protest no department in the city could possibly be cut. They would say no full-time persons could be replaced by part-timers (through attrition), the number of part-timers could not be reduced, no departments could be combined administratively to operate more efficiently.

Perhaps...

But it makes sense for the city to take more than the proverbial "hard look" at cutbacks. With a break-even budget, and taxes already too high for some, cuts are more logical than pay raises.

If raises are necessary, perhaps they could come, with added work, from the funds and workload generated by some departments operating with fewer persons.

The city should be able to operate without red ink this year. And there is a $1.1 million city surplus that could be used to handle emergencies.

This is not the time for raises. It does not take a prophet to foretell where following the red-ink road will lead.

The line has to be drawn somewhere, sometime.

Why not here, and now?

Plenty of pork in Build Illinois

By Jeff Brady
Copy News Service

SPRINGFIELD — "I heard this program called 'pork' during floor debate," Gov. James Thompson said after the Build Illinois program was finally approved. That's just plain wrong. There are no political winners. The real winners are the people."

There is an old political saying, however, that if it stinks when you poke it, it must be pork.

The summer departure of lawmakers from Springfield was delayed because the list of projects to be funded by Thompson's $1.3 billion Build Illinois public works program was as hard to nail down as a greased pig.

Every time legislative leaders thought they had an agreement on the "economic development" projects contained in the program, some new demands were made, and the end of the spring session deferred again.

Every year, lawmakers look to a couple of measures to provide projects for their districts, usually in the budgets for the Department of Transportation and the Capital Development Board.

Both agencies are responsible for major state construction work.

Concrete and steel, after all, are key ingredients in any legislative dish of pork. The projects a lawmaker brings home must be tangible, and the bigger the better.

This year, however, all eyes were on Build Illinois as a vehicle for bringing home the bacon. The bigger the dish — and $1.3 billion is an impressive sum — even for lawmakers used to dealing in millions — the more prevalent the lip smacking.

That was clear from the beginning, when more than 200 amendments were added in the House, bloating the program to more than $4 billion.

The attempt to narrow that list led to the major end-of-session battle over "Democratic" projects and "Republican" projects. Republican leader Sam Vinson complained that House Democratic leader Jim McPike won several projects for his home area, Alton and Madison County. McPike complained of Republican pork, including Vinson's proposal for a new elementary school in Riverton.

Neither $1 million worth of parks in Alton nor $700,000 worth of school building in Riverton has much to do with economic development. Most other communities have to pay for their own parks and their own elementary schools, but most other communities aren't represented by legislative leaders.

As the parties wrangled over the project list, it became more of a "Christmas tree decorated with pork," as one disapproving representative put it, than a comprehensive plan to put a few state dollars where they can attract much more private investment.

It is very hard to get lawmakers to vote for a program that includes a tax increase unless they can take something back to their districts. A lawmaker from Carbondale has trouble convincing a constituent who has to pay tax on a car bought from a neighbor that a new state library in Springfield is worth it.

On the national scale, Illinoisans complain that we don't get as much back in federal spending as we pay in taxes. So we tell our congressmen to bring back the pork.

It didn't have to be that way with Build Illinois, but to do otherwise would have forced the program against the political grain.

There was an alternative proposal to establish a revolving loan fund with state support, from which local communities could borrow to begin infrastructure improvements.

longevity, he should be reminded that streets are for cars, trucks and buses to drive on and for people to cross.

If any adults can't remember what their mother taught them as a child, here it is one more time. "If you don't play out in the street, you might get run over by a car."

Excessive coverage?

Visitors to the Granite City Post Office Wednesday afternoon were asked if the media, especially the television networks, over did the coverage of President Reagan's recent surgery. Their comments follow.

Rich Segobiano, Granite City

"Yes, I think so. I think there's more important matters to report on. They have a replacement for him (Reagan) if anything were to happen to him."

Jewel Hill, Granite City

"I don't think they really over did it. They just tried to explain exactly what was going to happen. Everyone was interested in the cancer and the danger of it reoccurring. It has a lot of bearing on the stock market and other things."

Mark Novich, Granite City

"I really didn't keep up with it too much, but I don't think they over did it. We all know now that he had it (cancer). I guess he waited until after the election to tell everyone."

Marie Cann, Granite City

"Yes, I think it's an evasion of his privacy, despite him being the president. I don't really want to know every detail. To be told that he had cancer is enough, but to have it on every broadcast was redundant."

Pets would be no problem at housing project

To the Editor:

As a Kirkpatrick Homes resident, it became my responsibility to abide by the rules set down by management. These include, in the leases, a clause which clearly states that no one is to have any animals, mainly dogs and cats.

However, from management, upon request, residents may receive four mousetraps to catch the frequent intruders from the kitchen.

If the mouse is not dead, then someone has to deal with the bacteria of extermination. A cat, however, not only kills the mouse but devours it.

A different breed of animal is the dog, sometimes a family pet. Often a choice has to be made between getting rid of the animal or moving, with the expectancy of paying higher rent, even though the person may only receive a minimum amount of income once a month.

I currently know of a family which was given a small dog by friends. The dog was abused in the area of Kirkpatrick Homes where it was living.

It was kicked in the ribs several times while still a pup, besides being hit with sticks and other items. This can make a dog vicious and attack strangers because it's being taught to distrust those it comes in contact with by their treatment of it.

Currently, this dog has been teased repeatedly by four small boys, and a 13-year-old boy has attempted to hit it several times with a stick.

To prepare leaders and to become playful with cats and other dogs, but it barks and chases those it feels might harm it or provoke it.

Several reports have gone into management as well as to the police department. This dog is now carrying pups. The family has received a second notice to get rid of the animal.

Be that as it may, I have often wondered why so much emphasis has been placed on the problems caused by animals, especially dogs, when there are so many more problems caused by children and others.

Some of these problems are vandalism, removing trash cans from their holders, breaking windows, installing bodily harm on other children, use of foul language, and creating disturbances.

Unfortunately, Kirkpatrick Homes does not have a security system or a warranted system. The latter might be effective in dealing with problems brought about by children living within Kirkpatrick.

Animals are sent away when they cause problems, but children are often more troublesome than dogs or cats.

Training key to improved law enforcement

To the Editor:

Fifty years ago, in July 1935, the first class of officers arrived for the new FBI National Police Training School.

Two classes later, the name was changed to the FBI National Police Academy; today, it is the FBI National Academy.

In 1937, J. Edgar Hoover described the value of this Academy:

"To this school (the National Academy) are invited forward-looking officers from police departments throughout America."

"It has been our greatest pleasure that following the training of these men (and women)...they have returned to their various departments, to become instructors to their fellow officers, or to be promoted, or to be given the task of guiding the destinies of their departments as chief or as commissioner."

Were I to write the charter of the National Academy today, I would not change a single word.

In the 50 years since the National Academy was established, much has changed in law enforcement. But one thing remains the same, and that is our desire to provide quality instruction to the men and women who come to the National Academy.

The job of the National Academy is the same today as it was in 1935: To prepare leaders for the taxing challenges of law enforcement.

The principal responsibility for fighting crime and maintaining law enforcement. How we meet this responsibility depends upon the professionalism that we bring to the task.

Professionalism doesn't have a fixed meaning. Applied to law enforcement, it includes a number of essential elements: Formalizing training, cooperation, continuing reappraisal of our goals and the means used to achieve them, rules of conduct that originate both within and outside the organization and a commitment to comply with them, a sense of group responsibility to society, a commitment to service, and a commitment to excellence.

Of these elements, one of the most crucial is training.

The public expects law enforcement officers to possess the skills of a business manager, a lawyer, a physicist, a chemist, a behavioral scientist, an accountant, a physician, a theologian, a community relations expert...and the list goes on.

Professionalism has come a long way in law enforcement, as the Supreme Court noted in its recent decision limiting the exclusionary rule.

A main ingredient in this progress in professionalism is more and better training.

The FBI National Academy, for the past 50 years, has made a vital contribution to police training.

To further this, the FBI is now calling on National Academy graduates to work alongside the FBI's police instructors in the field.

In this anniversary month of the National Academy, National Academy graduates and the FBI can and will go forward together, effectively doing the work that the American people expect of all of us, proud of our profession and worthy of the great trust given us by our fellow citizens.

Busy streets are for vehicles, not runners

To the Editor:

In reference to the letter, "Objects to jogger column," in the July 14 issue of the Press-Record/Journal, I would like to make a comment, short and sweet and to the point.

As a resident of Granite City who lives on Colgate Place, I travel around Wilson Park on a daily basis. I have been tempted to write a letter to the editor before, about the problem of joggers, runners and other assorted people who see fit to do their exercising out in the street. But I never did until a man commented on the joys of running, etc.

First of all, he should consider himself lucky to be alive if he has had heart problems of that extent. Secondly, in order to increase his longevity, he should be reminded that streets are for cars, trucks and buses to drive on and for people to cross.

If any adults can't remember what their mother taught them as a child, here it is one more time.

"If you don't play out in the street, you might get run over by a car."

A man and woman were arrested in front of El Gato Tavern, 1800 Delmar Ave., July 21 after both argued with police.

The incident began when Kathy L. Degischer, 33, of 1927 Fifth St., E. Madison, allegedly walked to the middle of the street and yelled profanity at officers. She then is said to have hit Craig A. McCracken, 26, of 1412 Madison Ave. in the face.

When police placed her under arrest, she allegedly tried to pull away. McCracken at this point crowded against police officers, they contended.

McCracken was told to step away and, when he did not, police said, they pushed him away, the man tripping and falling to the pavement; he declined to get up and police tried to carry him to a car but were unable to. He was dragged to a safer location until he could be put in a squad car.

McCracken was charged with disorderly conduct and obstructing a police officer. Degischer was charged with disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

Tailgating hazardous

By ILLINOIS SECRETARY OF STATE JIM EDGAR

More than 100,000 rear-end collisions occurred on Illinois roads in 1984. Many of those accidents could have been avoided if the drivers had maintained a safe following distance.

For many years the general rule of thumb to avoid following too closely was to allow one car length for every 10 miles per hour. The two-second rule provides an even safer following distance.

To use the two-second rule, choose a fixed object along the road ahead, such as a sign post, tree, overpass or bridge abutment. When the vehicle ahead passes your chosen object, begin to count, "One thousand one, one thousand two."

If your vehicle reaches the object before you finish saying "One thousand two," you are following too closely and should slow down.

The two-second procedure applies to any speed under good road and weather conditions. During a summer thunderstorm or other adverse driving conditions, increase your following distance to a four- or five-second count.

In rush-hour traffic, vehicles frequently follow each other in one-second intervals or less. If you observe the two-second rule, you may avoid a chain-reaction accident.

Remember, tailgating is dangerous and can result in a rear-end collision if the driver in front of you suddenly hits his brakes.

Fire engine rally planned Aug. 11

Vintage fire engines plus new equipment from the city and county fire districts will surround the Jefferson Memorial Building in Forest Park in St. Louis on Sunday, Aug. 11. The action starts at 2 p.m. when the large, old fire trucks will be parked in the circle north of the fountain, south of Lindell Boulevard. In other blocked-off streets, new equipment from the city and county will be lined up, and competitions will be staged: ladder climbing, a water fight, a bucket brigade and hose-coupling.

The event is being organized in conjunction with the exhibition at the Missouri Historical Society, "First to the Alarm: Volunteer Firefighting in St. Louis, 1818-1859." The rally last summer ignited such interest that the society decided to continue and expand activities this year.

Representatives from county fire departments and individual engine owners have been meeting with Chief Neil Svetanics, fire marshal of the city of St. Louis, and Suzanne Jones, Missouri Historical Society public relations coordinator, to plan the second annual Fire Engine Rally and Muster. The society is maintaining a master list of engine owners and encourages participation from St. Louis, Illinois, and outstate Missouri. Collectors of nozzles, hats, clocks and other fire equipment will be able to exhibit their treasures in the newly enclosed Loggia.

For more information about the activities or to enter an engine or two in the outdoor exhibit, interested persons may call Jones at the society at 1-314-361-1424.

Local women to participate in tying ribbon on Pentagon

On Sunday, Aug. 4, the Sunday preceding the anniversary of the bombings at Hiroshima and Nagasaki that helped end World War II, thousands will gather in Washington, D.C., to tie ribbon around the Pentagon. Participating will be several local women.

Traveling to the nation's capital for the ribbon event will be Joyce Schriber and her daughter, Maria, and Nona Corzilius, along with Rebecca Corzilius, a former Granite City resident now living in Michigan. They will take part in a "celebration for peace" by helping tie a ribbon around the vast office building, headquarters of the Department of Defense.

JUSTINE MERRITT, a former Chicago teacher, mother of five and a grandmother, developed the idea after a pilgrimage to Hiroshima and Nagasaki in 1975. After a retreat in 1982, she felt called to work for peace, noting the "terrifying reality that we now have enough nuclear weapons to destroy the earth."

She embroidered onto a piece of muslin the names of family members and friends — people she loved who would be lost in a nuclear holocaust. A few friends joined her, creating their own symbols and "threading their way through fear to hope," she recalls.

Merritt envisioned joining these panels, each measuring 18x36 inches, and tying them around the Pentagon to symbolize both vulnerability in the nuclear age and "dedication to this planet and its creators."

STARTING IN 1982, with grassroots support for travel expenses, she journeyed back and forth across the U.S., meeting with small groups in homes and in churches, sewing on her panel, reading her poetry and sharing her proposal. In three years, without the aid of a professional public relations coordinator, the plan has grown enormously.

Exhibits of ribbon segments have been held across the nation, including the Peace Museum in Chicago, C.W. Post College on Long Island, and conventions like the Church Women United meeting at Purdue University last summer.

The CWU gathering was attended by several from this area.

MORE THAN A MILE and a quarter of ribbon has been assembled at churches, art galleries, and in nearly every state.

On Memorial Day 1983, walks were held at state capitals to display the ribbon and speak out for peace. Nona Corzilius, a past president of the Church Women United local unit, served on the Illinois state planning committee and was in Springfield on Memorial Day as 1,200 ribbon panels were added from Illinois.

The ribbon idea has received wide publicity, in such publications as Vogue, Mother Jones and People magazine. More than 2,500 newspapers have published articles on the ribbon. Justine Merritt has been interviewed on Good Morning America, National Public Radio and other shows.

RIBBON SEGMENTS have arrived from the Soviet Union, Japan, Canada, Australia, Tanzania, Peru, Guatemala, France, Italy, Zambia, New Zealand, East Germany, West Germany, England and Holland. The plan has received unsolicited endorsements from the governors of Kentucky, Massachusetts, Illinois and Kansas, the mayor of Miami, Congressional representatives and most of the national peace groups. People from many religions, philosophical, ethnic, cultural, economic and political traditions have joined the effort.

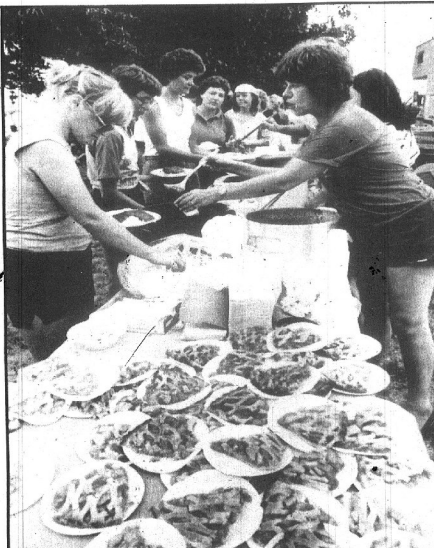

Women, men, youngsters and senior citizens have created their own unique segments in batik, applique, embroidery, needlepoint, quilting, silk screen, knitting, painting and crayoning.

EACH PIECE IS BASED on the common theme, "What I cannot bear to think of as lost forever in a nuclear war."

In the Quad-City area, Church Women United created a part of the ribbon which depicts steel mills, churches, railroads, homes, the Mississippi River and local people.

This piece of the ribbon will be in Washington to show the diversity of the people involved, to help celebrate their unity and to creatively display Americans' deepest fears, highest hopes, and desire for peace.

THE GRANITE CITY residents will take part in a number of events before and following the tying of the ribbon around the Pentagon. These will include a peace worship service at the Washington Cathedral on Aug. 3. They also have been invited to attend a Congressional reception in honor of the ribbon, sponsored by "Peace Links." On Aug. 5, they will take part in a ribbon around the Pentagon program sponsored by Church Women United.

CREDIT UNION VOLUNTEERS serve apple pie to hungry BAAW (Bicycle Across the Magnificent Miles of Illinois) riders. A new contingent of 500 bicyclists will leave Chicago Aug. 4, traveling the state to Edwardsville for arrival on Aug. 11. Members of the Illinois Credit Union League support the venture to raise funds for American Lung Association research. One-day rides also are planned.

Busy lending activity at savings and loans

The Illinois savings and loan business lent more in the first five months of this year than it did in all of 1982, according to the Illinois League of Savings Institutions. The associations made $1.9 billion in loans through May 1985, compared with 1982's yearly total of $1.8 billion.

Officials cite lower interest rates, lower inflation, strong home buying market and the public's acceptance of adjustable rate mortgages as reasons for the healthy lending performance. This year's January through May loan volume was slightly below last year's, but still the second highest for this five-month period since 1979.

Police find boxcars full of wood, liquid

A Venice officer alleged finding five former railroad boxcars filled with wood and an apparent flammable substance in a salvage yard, according to a report filed Tuesday night.

The police officer saw several boxcars in the center of the salvage yard and talked with a man inside the compound. The workman said he'd been contracted to cut up the cars or weld metal, but did not know who put the wood inside the railroad cars. As he was leaving the area, the officer noticed one road into the area.

JEWELRY TAKEN FROM CAR

Over $300 in jewelry was stolen July 23 from a car parked in front of 1920 Edison Ave. Debra Millon, 2435 Adams St., is the owner. Her purse, containing three rings, was gone. They were a gold wedding band, an engagement ring with seven diamonds, and a 1983 Granite City High School South ring. The latter has a pink stone, two small diamonds and the initials D.A.M. inscribed.

TWO STEAL CAR BATTERY

A witness told Madison police at 9 p.m. July 19 that she saw two men steal a battery out of a 1969 car parked in the 200 block of Madison Avenue. The pair ran across railroad tracks toward the Fox Brothers warehouse and eluded police. Clyde Holiday is the owner of the vehicle.

MAN ARRESTED FOR DUI

After seeing a car heading north on Madison Avenue at high speed and in an erratic manner July 20, including crossing the center median, Madison police stopped an auto at 14th Street and Madison Avenue. They arrested Harry White, 35, of 2223 Missouri Ave. for driving while under the influence of alcohol. A hearing is set for Aug. 23 in Granite City.

was blocked by a semi-trailer with a truck bed, located about 200 yards from the far entrance gate.

Another road leading from the main gate into the property was blocked by several other boxcars pulled across the tracks, he alleged. The officer told a reporter that, should the boxcars catch fire, the immediate area where the cars were standing would be inaccessible to firefighting equipment.

He was unable to contact anyone in authority who could explain why the cars were full of wood and liquid, the report said.

BURGLAR ENTERS GCHOME

Melva Hopkins of 2161 Monroe St. said July 23 someone entered her residence by prying a window frame. Nothing was found to be missing at the time of the report.

FOUR TIRES PUNCTURED

Emanuel Valencia, 2906 Sunset Drive, discovered July 23 a vandal had punctured all four tires on his 1982 auto parked in front of his home. Each of the tires was punctured in at least three places.

A vandal entered a storage building at the rear of Novotny Chevrolet, 1511 Niedringhaus Ave., July 22 and damaged three autos. A 1979 Chevrolet sustained damage to the right rear, a 1977 Chevrolet on the left and right sides and another Chevrolet on the left and right front and the right rear.

Venice store sells winning Lotto ticket

By VALERIE EVENEDEN
Staff writer

Thelma Bramlett of St. Louis, a regular customer at Bob's Red Fox grocery store, 420 Broadway, Venice, will receive $376,325 as her share in Saturday's $6 million Illinois State Lottery prize.

Bramlett is one of seven winners. She purchased the six-digit winning ticket — 1, 2, 10, 11, 12, 36 — in the grocery store's Quick Shop annex.

Among the other winners sharing the $2.6 million cash pool is Donna Lynn Walton, also of St. Louis. Five other winners reside in Illinois and Indiana.

* BOB BOOTHMAN, owner of the Venice store, is delighted. Not only does his store receive one percent of the winnings, $3,763, but Bramlett's win boosts his "lucky" record.

About a year ago, a Florissant man scored big with a $2 million winning ticket purchased at the Venice store.

Just two months ago, another

St. Louis woman won $100,000 on a Red Fox ticket.

ALTHOUGH FAR from begrudging the latest winner her rewards, Boothman did say today he'd like to see someone closer to home win big.

"It would be nice to see what someone from here would do with the money — what the results of winning could do for a local family, maybe fix up their home and soon."

Boothman said the Florissant man who won the $2 million still comes in to buy a lottery ticket.

HAD ONLY SIX people won in Saturday's lotto, each would have received $1 million in payments of $50,000 each year over a 20-year period, Boothman explained.

The $376,325 payment represents one-seventh of the $2.6 million cash prize pool in last week's lotto game. Prizes of less than $450,000 are paid in a lump sum.

Dixon, Simon, Price urge selling surplus land at base

By VALERIE EVENEDEN
Staff writer

U.S. Senators Alan J. Dixon and Paul Simon and U.S. Representative Melvin Price are lending their support to an effort to gain release of property declared surplus 15 years ago at the Granite City Army Installation.

At Tuesday night's meeting of the Venice City Council, a letter signed by the three and sent to John W. Shannon, assistant secretary of the Army for installations and logistics, was read by Venice Mayor Tyrone Echols.

"I SUPPOSE IT is getting the push that it needs to facilitate the problem, but doubtless we won't hear anything else until November," the mayor said after reading excerpts from three letters.

The primary letter was a reply to a previous communication from Shannon.

In it, the congressional leaders said, "Your understanding of the problems posed by the current economic distress in this community (Quadrant area) is appreciated."

"WE ALSO WANT to assure you that we understand and support the needs and responsibilities of the Department of the Army."

"In this instance, however, we were surprised to learn that the Army has suddenly come forth with new recommended uses for the property in question, which was declared surplus 15 years ago.

"We feel that the suggested use of the area as a tank training center is completely unsuitable and impractical in an urban setting."

THE LEGISLATORS' letter continued, "The Tri-City Regional Port District has an immediate need for the surplus property."

"The Port District is prepared to bring in new business activities which will create at least 75 jobs in this high unemployment area."

Details concerning plans, plus statements of local governmental support for sale and development of the property, were included with their letter, the congressional leaders said.

The communication asked Shannon to personally review the situation and reconsider the Army's request for a delay.

"TIME IS CRITICAL and a delay until Nov. 1, 1985, could negate this economic development plan entirely," the letter asserted.

On July 11, Shannon told the congressional leaders he had visited the Granite City Army Installation and felt the "requirements being supported appear to be meritorious and valid."

USES BEING MADE of the 156-acre tract in question, including the tank training area, are a result of the emphasis the Army has been giving over the past several years to economical and efficient use of resources and to Reserve Component training and readiness, the assistant secretary said.

"Before a final determination on the need for the 156-acre tract is made, a master development and utilization plan covering all of SLASC (St. Louis Area Support Center) is needed."

The Nov. 1, 1985, date that I gave you is based on a greatly compressed schedule for completion of the plan and allows for the necessary review and consideration of the plan by the Army and GSA (General Services Administration) in order to arrive at a decision by the date," the official said.

SHANNON WAS UNABLE to find any way to reduce the time required for the development plan and still maintain an orderly and acceptable procedure, he said.

In a July 17 letter, Sen. Dixon wrote Shannon, "While I understand the time constraints relative to the issue, I also trust that you understand the urgency of developing the property in this economically depressed area of Illinois."

Shannon asked the Army official to keep him "closely informed as the situation progresses."

THE VENICE MAYOR, along with other mayors in the local communities and the Tri-City Regional Port District, have been attempting to gain release of the 156-acre tract at the Granite City Army Installation for economic development.

This same tract of land put on the availability list by the GSA in 1978 was the subject of the congressional leaders' letter.

Last week, the Army announced plans to construct 100 housing units at the installation and move a helicopter training area onto the 156-acre tract.

The space presently is utilized for warehousing and for tank training of the 102nd Army Reserve Command, officials said.

Burglar pushes Venice woman

A noise at the back door awakened Ruby Haymes, 442 Lincoln Ave., Venice, about 4 a.m. Sunday. She thought the sounds were being made by a squirrel, but realized differently, however, when a man entered her bedroom.

Mrs. Haymes, 89, said the tall, thin intruder said he wanted all her money and jewelry. When she replied she didn't have any money or jewelry in the house and started to get out of bed, the burglar pushed her backward with his hand, she said.

It was dark in the bedroom and she was able only to see an outline of the man, who searched the drawers of a nightstand and the chest of drawers and left when he was unable to find anything.

The burglar cut telephone wires before leaving the house.

The Haymes burglary is the third incident in recent weeks in which senior residents of Venice were the victims.

The Rev. Darris Johnson, 94, of Venice, was struck on the left side of the head with what appeared to be a gun when a robber entered his home June 11.

The elderly minister lost $700 and some personal items and required medical attention at St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

In the early morning hours of July 16, Venice residents Frank and Hazel Pozniack, both in their mid-80s, were terrorized when a bottle containing a liquid substance which smelled like gasoline was thrown at their home, setting fire to the front of the dwelling.

Although the couple suffered no injuries, the resulting blaze caused several thousand dollars worth of damage to the front of their house.

City pay, manpower

under the motto of business as usual," he said.

"THE UNEMPLOYMENT in this town has reached 17 percent and still, people are complaining that the city workers haven't had a pay increase in two years. We have some people in this town who haven't had a paycheck in three years."

Cruse said that every time a surplus in the city budget has been announced, the city has thought of projects on which to spend the money.

"Let's give the taxpayers a break by lowering their taxes instead," he said.

CRUSE SAID he would be in favor of increases for workers if it was proved that employees are not making a "fair" wage.

He said preliminary investigations into what other communities are paying their workers suggest Granite City employees are making a fair wage.

Cruse also said he will not support hirings in any city departments until an investigation can be done into the manning of the individual departments.

CRUSE SUGGESTED a shifting of the schedules could solve manning problems.

"The aldermen can put $1 million in the budget for hiring but I won't hire anyone," he said.

"We've got to run this city like a responsible business. We can't keep business as usual in the city when we see what has happened in the surrounding business community."

Township may give up senior bus service

By SUSANNE INDELICATO
Staff writer

NAMEOKI — There may be a change in the management of Nameoki Township's senior bus service.

The Agency for Community Transit (ACT) has asked township officials to consider turning over the township's bus service to ACT.

"WE'D LIKE to see as many services as possible consolidated to better serve the user," said Jerry Kane of the Madison County Transit District, which oversees ACT.

"We're trying to put as many services as possible under one roof," Kane presented his proposal to the

Township Supervisor Harry Briggs told the board that if the township rejects the proposal, it could lose its current funding for the senior bus service. He estimated the township receives about $24,000 annually for maintenance and operation of a senior bus. The driver is paid by the township.

SHOULD THE TOWNSHIP consolidate with ACT, Kane said, the township's bus driver would be retained by ACT to serve Nameoki Township. Retaining the bus driver would save training costs, he said.

Other advantages to consolidation, he said, would be door-to-door service, a fleet of 19 vehicles which would be better able to provide back-up service should the township bus break down, a toll-free telephone number to the dispatching center, and maintenance service.

Nameoki Township senior and handicapped citizens would be able to go from the township to such areas as Granite City, St. Louis, Belleville, Alton, Edwardsville and Collinsville, he noted.

IN ADDITION, he said, ACT has purchased property at the intersection of Interstate 270 and Route 111 for a new facility. He expects the building to be constructed and in operation in a year.

Briggs asked Kane whether ACT would provide the same services now provided to township senior citizens.

"We've got our seniors spoiled," Briggs said. "I don't want to see a cut in services."

"THE ONLY REASON the (transit) district wants to consolidate is to better serve the people," Kane responded. "If a vehicle breaks down, we've got the back-up."

Kane also noted that ACT buses are in operation from 5:30 a.m. to past midnight on week nights and Saturdays, but there is no service on Sundays.

Township officials also were concerned about the township's bus, which was bought by the transit district but was signed over on the title to the township.

BRIGGS SAID that, although the township has a contract for funding from the transit district, a clause in the contract allows the transit district to stop funding the township bus service.

Such a curtailment of service would require five days' notice, the contract stipulates.

Bids sought to build new U.S. courthouse

Contractors have an opportunity until Aug. 14 to bid on constructing a 77,000 square foot federal courthouse in downtown East St. Louis. It will adjoin the historic, existing courthouse at 730 Missouri Ave.

All federal court activities in southern Illinois will be headquartered in the two structures, which will function together as a court complex. A three-story atrium will be the central focus of the combined facility.

Cost estimates range from $5 million to $7½ million. A single general contract will be signed for all work in the building, including mechanical and electrical systems.

There will be a competitive negotiation process, with all proposals kept confidential until the award is made.

Leaving to spend year in China as college teacher

Bill Winter Jr. of Granite City will spend the next year in China teaching college students and high school students. He will be a faculty member for English and business subjects.

He has been honored this month at a series of farewell parties, including a gathering of 65 at the Peking Restaurant here.

Winter, 23, will leave Saturday for training at Oral Roberts University, Tulsa, Okla. He will fly in mid-August to the People's Republic of China to teach at the Changchun Foreign Language School.

CHANGCHUN, capital of Jilin Province, has a population of 1,500,000 and is located in northeast China north of North Korea. There are one billion Chinese, one-fourth of the world's population.

Sponsor of the year-long teaching program is University Language Services. Under a separate program, Winter spent the summer of 1984 in Hong Kong and visited Canton, China.

A 1979 graduate of Granite City High School North, where he was a member of the National Honor Society, he was a presidential scholar at Illinois College, Jacksonville. Winter graduated cum laude in 1983 with the degree of bachelor of arts in business administration, economics and sociology.

IN MAY 1985, he received the degree of master of business administration from St. Louis University.

He is the son of Bill and Lois Winter, 3310 Wilshire Drive. His father is a member of the news and editing staff of the Press-Record/Journal and his mother is a certified public accountant and tax consultant.

THE TOWN GREW rapidly in the 1930s after it was made the capital of the Japanese state of Manchukuo in Manchuria. Japan's occupation lasted from 1933 to 1945.

After the revolution, China's first automobile factory was built in Changchun, which also has factories to produce trucks, railway cars, electric motors, machine tools, textiles and processed food. Major feature films are made at the Changchun Movie Studio.

Triplicate forms reducing misuse, diversion of drugs

Edward T. Duffy, director of the Illinois Department of Alcoholism and Substance Abuse (DASA), announced this week the full implementation of the Illinois Triplicate Prescription Control Program.

"This modern, computer-based prescription control program gives the people of Illinois more effective protection against misuse and diversion of drugs with a high potential for abuse such as opiates or amphetamines," said Duffy.

The department has been developing this program for the past year, using the professional expertise of pharmacy, medical and law enforcement officials throughout the State.

Duffy said the Illinois State Medical Society and the Illinois Pharmacists Association were actively involved in making sure that the program meets the needs of the medical and pharmacy professionals as well as law enforcement and regulatory agencies.

DASA began manually operating the prescription control program in July 1984.

Duffy said, "During the first year of operations, more than 180,000 prescription forms will be processed by DASA. With the computerized issuance and control of this many forms, street diversion will be reduced even further.

"The prescription control program has proven itself already. In one instance, a doctor reported that his triplicate blanks had been stolen. An alert was sent to all Illinois pharmacies and, within two weeks, a pharmacist called the police when the thief tried to have one of the stolen blanks filled."

Drugs such as hydromorphone (Dilaudid) and phenmetrazine (Preudin) are primary targets for diversion because of their potent effects and high resale value on the street, Duffy noted.

Each month, about 4,500 different doctors, dentists and veterinarians write prescriptions for drugs that require the triplicate form. DASA expects to supply nearly 30,000 practitioners with the new forms in the coming year.

Anyone seeking information on the program may call the Triplicate Prescription Control Program at DASA at 1-312-917-3840 or 1-217-782-0685.

Further work is planned on Venice launching ramp

By VALERIE EVENDEN
Staff writer

VENICE — Additional work on the Venice boat launching ramp improvement project is necessary prior to the city accepting the job as completed.

At Tuesday night's meeting of the Venice City Council, a change order releasing a further $5,721 for the project was approved.

INITIALLY, a $60,000 grant for improvement of the boat launching area, adjacent parking facilities and access roads to the Venice riverfront was approved.

The city qualified for the funds in October 1982 through the Illinois Department of Conservation.

Due to high water levels at various times of the year, the project failed to get under way until 1984, when the primary construction contract was awarded to the C. D. Peters firm.

MOST OF the improvements were completed last year.

But again the level of the Mississippi River appears to have interfered with specific rock work on both sides of the ramp, which may not have been finished, a Venice official said.

In the meantime, $2,058 worth of damage has been sustained to the ramp area from barge traffic, it was reported by Mayor Tyrone Echols to Venice aldermen Tuesday.

THE MAYOR REPORTED also that project engineer Ed Juneau recommended that repairs, plus erosion prevention work, should be completed before acceptance by the city.

We need to approve the change order to get some added protection for the ramp and to get the work done at the state's expense," Echols said.

Funds still remain in the initial grant, it was noted.

A TOTAL OF $3,563 was allocated for the additional project to prevent further erosion and damage by barges.

Barges heading upstream in the Mississippi River frequently pull into shore near the Venice launching ramp while waiting to enter Granite City Lock 27 on the Chain of Rocks Canal, a Venice official said.

When the water level is high it may be difficult for the barge operators to see the ramp, resulting in damage to both sides of the concrete incline, it was related.

THE VENICE BOAT launching area proved to be a popular spot during the recent Fourth of July fireworks shows in downtown St. Louis.

Numerous small boats launched from the Venice ramp were observed milling about in the Gateway Arch area, with their passengers enjoying an unobstructed view of the brilliant displays staged on the St. Louis riverfront.

LOCATED ABOUT a quarter-mile north of the McKinley Bridge, the launching ramp is reached from the west side of Illinois Route 3 and then west along Bremen Street.

Bremen is the last exit road from the highway before entering the bridge approach area.

In other action Tuesday night, aldermen approved payment for a 45-passenger bus to take Silver Bells senior citizens to the Illinois State Fair in Springfield on Aug. 14.

THE COUNCIL also gave provisional approval to the issuance of a building permit to the Rev. Lucius Lawrence, a new resident of Venice.

The permit is for construction of a large concrete pad on which to place a mobile home at 1218 Calhoun St.

Some concern about the permit application was expressed by aldermen, who approved it contingent on the street and alley committee meeting with City Attorney Lawrence Hartman to resolve possible technicalities.

ECHOLS EMPHASIZED to Rev. Lawrence, who was present at the meeting, that all mobile homes must be skirted and tied down and an occupancy permit must be obtained prior to residency.

It was decided to secure further information from the Illinois Department of Transportation before agreeing to contribute $25,000 as the city's share of a $75,000 improvement of traffic signal lights at the Illinois Route 3 and Broadway intersection.

District Engineer Dale L. Klorh informed the city earlier this month that IDOT has tentatively scheduled updating the controller equipment and adding mast arms to the signal lights.

"I DON'T KNOW what the situation will be if we don't agree to pay the money, probably the bottom line is that it won't get done," Echols said.

Clarification was sought by Third Ward Alderman John Ervin, who said, "I'd like to know exactly what improvements are being proposed. My point is that it's not that we don't want to (participate) but that we can't afford to."

It is possible the money could come out of Motor Fuel Tax funds," the mayor added.

REBECCA SHAVER, 8, who has been selected as the newest member of the St. Louis Steamers' Little Steam Heat dance, snared a St. Elizabeth School fourth grader, she is the daughter of Ron and Phyllis Shaver of Granite City. After auditioning at the Ray Parks Academy of Dance, Earth City, she was chosen as one of 40 out of 175 competing in the 6-11 age group. Steam Heat Dancers perform at soccer Steamers home games and also at such events as the Veiled Prophet Fair and benefit fund-raising programs. # American Legion Baseball Geiger, Highland end Tri-City's season, 5-4

By JOE THOMPSON
of the Press-Record

HIGHLAND With the type of lights that prompt opposing fans to reach for their flashlights, and a lead-off batter who would just as soon get hit as get a hit, Highland's American Legion baseball squad is a tough team to beat at home.

The lights were not a factor as Highland ended Tri-City's Triplets' season with a 5-4 victory Wednesday night here in District 22 playoffs, but gamey Tom Geiger sure was.

Highland's plucky lead-off batter had three hits — one to his elbow and the other to his shin while leaning in to the strike zone when at-bat. After warned by the umpire to move back off the plate on his third appearance, Geiger swung away and got his third hit — a squibby ball past the pitcher he beat out.

THE THREE "hits" led Highland — clearly a team of opportunity — to its five runs.

The Triplets, who ended their season with a 12-12 District 22 slate, needed to beat Highland twice in order to advance in the playoffs. As it was, they stayed in the running with a 4-1 victory over Alton Tuesday night. Ernie Gray pitched a masterful four-hitter. He was helped out by stellar catches by left fielder Shane Cole and center fielder Gerald Booker, who also had two hits and two RBIs.

Highland's Geiger did not dispute that he's looking to get hit, or get a walk when he crowds home plate. "I am," he said. He has been hit 10 times this season. He has also scored 40 runs.

STARTING Triplet pitcher Mark Bowen contended Geiger actually was in the strike zone when his pitches struck him his first two times at bat. Rules stipulate a player must make an effort to move away from a ball pitched close to him.

"He (the umpire) blew it the first two times," said Bowen, who allowed just three hits but was relieved by Steve Davis when giving up his fifth walk of the game to lead off Highland's fifth frame. "They (the pitchers) were both strikes."

A "strike" by Bowen in the first inning put Geiger on base, where he promptly stole second. He then scored the game's first run on a beshit by Chad Weiss.

THE TRIPLETS tied the contest in the second inning on a driving single to left field by Matt Roe. Scoring was Fred Becker, who had singled, stole second and advanced to third on John Conocovich's long fly ball to right field.

Highland regained the lead in the second. With two outs and nobody on, Ron Masserli coaxed a walk. Geiger then took another "strike" from Bowen. Scott Riggs advanced both runners with a walk. Mark Rosen sent home all three runs with a double to right field.

The Triplets rebounded in the third inning on a hit by Sam Tate — the kind that makes a big sound when striking the bat. Tate blasted a pitch by Jim Geiger well over the right field fence with Kurt Hylla and Shane Cole on base. Hylla reached base on a walk and Cole popped a single to center.

TATE'S three-run homer pulled the Triplets even at 4-4. But only until Geiger's next at-bat in the fourth inning. Warned to move back from the plate, Geiger swung away and grounded an infield hit. He scored when Riggs grounded to shortstop Roe, who threw to first retiring the batter.

Geiger, running on Roe's throw, continued to third base. He scored when first baseman Pat Cathey's throw sailed over third baseman Tate's head.

The error was the only defensive breakdown by the Triplets, who otherwise sparkled in the field. Cathey made an outstanding play in the sixth when he leaped to pull down a throw from Tate to retire a batter. Hylla made a sparkling throw from right field to retire a Highland runner at third base. THE TRIPLETS, with Davis pitching hitless ball and the defense stiffening, threatened the sixth inning, putting runners at second and third with two out. Fred Becker singled, stole second and advanced to third on an errant throw. Roe walked and stole second.

In the seventh, Gerald Booker singled with one out. He stole second and raced to third when the throw from the catcher went wild.

Pitcher Geiger retired Roe on a sharp ground ball and he struck out Hylla and got Cole to pop out in the seventh.

HIGHLAND coach Wayne Wirz defended Tom Geiger's home plate tactics. "Roberto (Clemente did it) leaning close to the plate," Frank Robinson did it. "I don't teach it."

As for the dim lights, which drew wisecracks from Granite City fans, Wirz smiled. "I can see. Can't you? They're not the greatest. At one time they were the best. But they're not anymore."

"There were no balls lost," said Wirz. "It takes concentration, okay. I agree. It may affect a ballclub."

You guys got the best lights but you don't have enough money to play under them."

TRI-CITY manager Dave Coakley said the lights were not a factor, but Highland's hurler Jim Geiger was. "I think the pitcher had us confused with his curve ball," he said.

The Triplets managed just five hits. Talking about his coaching philosophy, Coakley said he attempts to play fairly. Asked if he thinks Highland plays by the rules, Coakley grinned and said, "I'd better not comment on that."

As for the missed opportunities in the sixth and seventh innings, Coakley said, "That's baseball."

Speaking of which, there will be no more for the Triplets until next season.

Paddlers swim by Montclair Winners Again

By PAULA WISE
of the Press-Record

GRANITE CITY Paddlers' swim club of Granite City pushed itself into a three-way tie for first Tuesday night as they soundly defeated Montclair of Edwardsville 376-284.

Montclair, who was undefeated coming into Tuesday's contest, joins Paddlers and Castlight of Collinsville in the top position with a 4-1 record.

Earlier in the evening the diving team lost a close contest 36-35.

Strong performances in all the age groups helped the swim team to come away with their best finish of the season.

PADDLERS coach Celeste Sonnenberg was surprised by the large margin of victory.

"They were undefeated coming in," said Sonnenberg. "I thought it would be much closer."

One reason the Granite City team expected a much closer contest was the results of last year's meet with the Edwardsville squad. In that meet Paddlers was able to claim victory only after the last relay had been finished.

However, Coach Sonnenberg was quick to point out that this is a stronger team than the one she took to Montclair for last year's meet.

"THE EIGHT and unders are a lot stronger this year, and that really helps. Also we have more depth. There's a lot of competition for the spots so they all work hard to get to swim the events," Sonnenberg said. "We also had all our older boys here tonight, so that helped a lot."

The Granite City coach also was quick to give credit to her team who she said turned in a very good performance.

Sonnenberg cited Pat Curry, Steve Geske and Adrienne Yates as having good nights for the eight and under age group.

CHERYL FORBES and Suchon Tully-shien were the top swimmers in the 9-10 group. Jenny Baker, Christy Goff, Robbie Terrell, Larry Curry and Billy McCormick were named by their coach as leading the way for the 11 and 12 year olds.

In the older age groups, Sonnenberg said she was very happy with the performances of Kelly Reed, Deanna Hankins, Vince Darnell, Danny Niles, John Amisch, Mike Geske, Patty Martin, and J-Lynn Hankins.

The long list of swimmers who did well is the main reason Coach Sonnenberg feels her team was able to defeat Montclair by such a large margin.

Coach Sonnenberg hopes to use the victory as a spring board as they prepare for the SWISA championships on Aug. 3.

Paddlers will have just one more meet next Tuesday against Wedgewood before the championships.

ALTHOUGH the swim team came away with a victory, the diving team was not so lucky as they were handed their first defeat of the season. Sharon Engelke, who was substituting for Gayle McCormick as diving coach, cited the fact that Paddlers had no 13-14 year old boys to dive as her teams' only reason for defeat.

"They only had two in that bracket. If we would have only had one that would have won the meet for us," said Engelke. "They got eight points for first and second. Even if our boy had placed third that would have been one point which would have at least tied the score."

ON the positive side of the event, Engelke said Wendy Knollman as having an exceptional night for Paddlers.

"Wendy did a very good job tonight. She beat a girl who I think won Prairie State last year," said the Granite City Coach.

David Baker was also cited by his coach as a good night diving.

The diving team will travel to top honors in the 13-14 girls division, Paddlers divers, as a team, dropped the meet 36-35 for their first loss of the season.

Play Again Tonight Hogan hurters topple Optimists; Alton ready

Well, I'm a steamroller baby.

I'm gonna roll all over you.

Yes, I'm a steamroller for your love baby.

I'd like nothing better than to roll all over you.

GRANITE CITY — Steamroller.

Five words, if any, better describe the way the Kelly Hogan Junior American Legion baseball team has been rolling over its opponents.

After winning just two of its first five ballgames, Kelly Hogan has won 14 of its last 15 contests, losing only to East St. Louis 4-2 on July 14 since that dismal start.

Hogan's latest victim were the Alton Optimists, a team they left in the dust, 7-2, Tuesday night at Varsity Field in the first-round of playoffs. TONIGHT, again at Varsity Field, Hogan will take on Alton at 7:30 p.m. Last night, at Gordon Moore Park, Alton whipped near-rival East Alton 6-5 to advance against in the playoffs.

"In the early going, when we were 2-3, our defense was pretty bad and our pitchers were walking too many batters," explained Hogan coach Paul Kacera. "Since then, though, the defense has solidified and our pitching has come around."

For the heighly Kacera, who was quite a baseball player himself, that was quite an understatement.

AGAINST the Alton Optimists, Hogan broke the scoreless tie in the second inning when Jay Valbert reached on a walk. Pinch-runner for Valbert, Randy Chapman stole second before Jeff Zukas fled out to center field.

With two outs, Dave Bamber reached on a pass to put runners at first and second for Ritchie Wilson. Wilson put Hogan ahead 1-0 as he picked up the local squad's first hit of the game to easily score Chapman.

An attempted play to get Bamber going to third failed and enabled the Hogan catcher to speed home to take a 2-0 lead.

WILSON, who alertly advanced to second on the play at third base, scored when Todd Hinterser singled, further padding the local squad's lead, 3-0.

Through an uneventful third inning, Alton managed to cut the Hogan lead by one, 3-1, when it managed back-to-back singles to erase the goose egg from the scoreboard.

Hogan got that run back and then some in its half of the fourth when Wilson, who led off the fourth when scored on a walk. The speedy lead-off batter easily worked himself into scoring position as he swiped both second and third.

A PASS issued to Charlie Collins put runners at the corners for Hinterser, who eventually struck out, and Todd Adamits who managed only to send Collins to second base.

Just when it seemed the local squad would squander the two free passes issued it, Scott LeVault swatted a two-out, two-RBI single to score both Wilson and Collins.

Playing without the services of either Tim or Jamie Hogan, who are attending a basketball camp at Eastern Illinois University at Charleston, Hogan continued its scoring ways in the fifth inning as both Valbert and Zukas managed to tally.

VALBERT led the inning off with a double and advanced to third when Zukas singled.

Mike Georgeff, who replaced Bamber in the lineup, belted a sacrifice fly to center field to score Valbert and then, with just one out, Wilson picked up his second RBI of the game when he singled to score Zukas, giving Hogan a 7-1 lead.

The Alton Optimists managed their second and final run of the game in the sixth inning when Valbert issued a one-out pass to Terry Kline.

Kline scored when two of his Alton teammates put together back-to-back singles to adjust the eventual final score. The Optimists could have gotten more had the Alton clean-up hitter touched first base as he doubled. LeVault alertly appealed to the base coach and touched the base for the rally-killing third out.

Despite the lopsided score, Hogan only outlived their Alton counterparts by two, nine to two. The right-handed Valbert, who has a 6-1 record this season with an equally impressive 1.40 earned run average, is 13-2 this spring and summer count.

Should Hogan win Thursday evening they will advance to the divisional playoffs this weekend at Hoppe Field in Edwardsville. Times and pairings have yet to be decided, although the championship game is known to be scheduled for Sunday evening.

Prairie Games Follow-up Games provide golden moment

By JOE THOMPSON
of the Press-Record

GRANITE CITY — Who knows the 17-year-old daughter of Roger and Connie Martin of Granite City won the gold medal in the 100-meter butterfly at the Prairie State Games?

A week after daughter Patti finished first in the event in a sizzling 1:08.32, the question might be, "Who doesn't know?"

Patti, who will be a junior at Granite City High this year, won the event last Thursday. It was the first gold medal won by Patti's Southern Region team and — as the water settled Sunday afternoon over the games held in Champaign — one of only two gold medals won by Southern Region in swimming.

Patti's time also was a personal best. You're darn right the Martin clan was ecstatic.

"My whole family is excited," Patti said at the Games' closing ceremonies Sunday. "My grandmother (Shirley Goff of Granite City) called all her friends."

There was also dinner that evening. The Martin family's excitement bubbled over. It didn't matter they were eating amongst strangers in a town about 150 miles removed from their own. Patti's family quickly made new acquaintanceships. They informed their just made friends what Patti achieved.

"All the waiters and everybody," said Patti smiling. Asked if she was embarrassed by the attention, Patti said, big smile firmly in place, "Yeah. They made a big deal out of it."

Then, however, it is a very big deal.

"It's just a fantastic accomplishment," said Celeste Sonnenberg, the highly-respected swimming coach at Paddlers, where Patti swims. "She's been working really hard for it."

Besides winning a gold medal, Patti helped Southern Region swim to a bronze medal in the 400-meter relay event.

Patti has been swimming since she was eight. The winning of the gold medal at the Prairie State Games — the only first place medal won by a Granite City athlete in an individual event — was, in her words, "the best place I've ever gotten."

Patti's "hard work" paid off earlier this year. She qualified for the prestigious YMCA Nationals in the 100-meter butterfly, and narrowly missed making the finals.

Qualifying for the YMCA Nationals was further evidence of Patti's commitment to swimming. "Every summer I see a big improvement," said Sonnenberg.

Patti's family members weren't the only ones excited by the gold medal showing. "I was shocked for a little bit," Patti said Sunday. "But I'm excited."

Patti's achievements in swimming are ample, as noted by the numerous ribbons and trophies on the wall of her bedroom. Included is an autographed picture of United States Olympic Gold Medalist Tracy Caulkins, Patti's swimming idol.

But the ribbons and picture will have to be rearranged. With 12-year-old sister, Cathy, and best friend, Melinda Buckner, looking on, a still smiling Patti held her gold medal aloft.

She'll have to make a place for that, too.

Some closing thoughts on the '85 Prairie State Games

EDITOR'S NOTE: Joe Thompson recently returned from covering the Second Annual Prairie State Games. The magnitude of the Games Thompson says, is unbelievable. It's a lot like the 1984 Olympic Games held in Los Angeles; competition sites nearly everywhere giving the spectators the freedom to move freely from site to site. In an attempt to gather as much information about the Prairie Games — not only the athletes, but the mood as well — and assemble it in a manner that won't read like a novel, Joe is filing this final report.

By JOE THOMPSON
of the Press-Record
CHAMPAIGN — Let me tell you why I thought the Prairie State Games was such a great event. You see, there was this guy wearing yellow shorts. He was standing on the floor of Assembly Hall in Champaign last Sunday for the Games' closing ceremonies. A gray shirt hung out over his shorts, but not far enough down to cover the bold, black letters which spelled out his contribution, "I tried."

Commentary

That was why the Games were so special. I don't think it mattered our Southern Region had to settle for fifth place a second straight year. I think what was important was the drive through Champaign early Sunday afternoon. The sidewalks were filled. There were yellow buses all over. The kids were going home. Fourteen-year-old Kelly Reed of Granite City, who competed in swimming, was one of them. "We had fun," she said, no doubt thinking about the dances held nightly near the campus' tennis courts she and her friends attend, or how she and a bunch of other girls got water on the floors of one of the dorm rooms (should we tell the water spilled over while filling up some balloons?)

There was the ice cream trip to Baskins-Robbins, when Kelly and nine others put their coins together to make a $5 purchase, just enough ice cream to warrant a free beach ball.

The beach ball wasn't in sight, but Kelly's "J. C. Penney's" shorts were. She was wearing them. Just wait until Granite City gets a look at all those colors. As Kelly was saying, she had fun, but now, "I'm ready to go home."

I saw some hugs. In Assembly Hall for the closing games, I felt a slight tug and almost heard music. Some kids from the Southern Region waved this big confederate flag.

Granite City, C'ville girls named to Midwest team

By ALAN L. GERSTENECKER
Sports Editor
of the Press-Record

ALTON — A Granite City and a Collinsville girl are among four girls statewide who were chosen to the under 19 Midwest Regional Select Soccer Team.

Maria Parra, 17, of Granite City and Mary Furfaro, 16, of Collinsville are the two girls. Parra, a 1985 graduate of Granite City High School, and Furfaro, who will graduate from Collinsville next year, will fly to Benedictine College in Atchison, Kan., next month where they will play other regional teams in hopes of being selected to the under 19 girls' national team.

THEY WERE selected to the Midwest Regional team by virtue of their performances three weeks ago here at Gordon Moore Park. They are two of about 180 girls who competed for a position on the Midwest Regional team.

Both members of their respective high school teams, the two were coached by Granite City's Gene Briggs, the state under 19 girls' coach, and will compete at Benedictine Aug. 3-9 for a coveted position on the national team. Briggs is the soccer coach at Madison High School.

They were among the estimated 180 who participated in the under 19 Illinois soccer competition at Gordon Moore Park three weeks ago.

IN ADDITION to Parra and Furfaro, Danielle Thomas and Michelle Trusguich, two young women from the Chicago area, were also selected to the regional team.

Parra and Trusguich are fullbacks while Furfaro and Thomas are forwards. Parra and Furfaro, incidentally, were also members of the Southern Region's scholastic team which finished fourth in the recently completed Prairie State Games held in Champaign-Urbana. Last year, the two were on the same team which won a gold medal at the Olympic-style Games.

"I DIDN'T find out that I made the team until I was at Prairie State," Parra explained during an interview Wednesday at the Press-Record office.

"I found out from Michelle. She said their Kytynsky (girls' division adviser) told her. It (making the Midwest team) took a little of the sting out of our fourth-place finish, but it would have been nice to have won the gold medal just the same."

Furfaro, the youngest of the four Illinois girls, learned of her selection to the team in a similar way.

"I WAS walking down the hallway (of one of the University of Illinois dormitories) when Gina congratulated me. 'Oh, by the way,' she said, 'congratulations on making the team,' as she walked the other way down the hall."

"I didn't know what she was talking about so I caught up with her. It really made my day. It's easily the biggest honor I've gotten as a soccer player," Furfaro said.

It was also an honor for Briggs, the girls' coach.

"HEY, IT'S really quite an honor for these girls, all four of them," Briggs said Tuesday afternoon. "They had two days to show the right people — those who would select the Midwest team — what kind of soccer players they are and evidently they were quite successful."

Although Briggs' job as their Illinois coach is finished, he hasn't given up helping them. He is currently organizing a fund drive to help defray the cost of the girls' stay and transportation while in Kansas. Persons interested in contributing to such a fund should call Briggs at 876-4719.

Parra, who also starred last fall at GCC as a doubles tennis player, is the daughter of Robert and Tessie Parra of Granite City. Furfaro is the daughter of Angelo Sr. and Rosalie Furfaro of Collinsville.

SOCCER GREATS. Maria Parra, left, and Mary Furfaro were among four girls statewide selected to the Midwest Regional under 19 girls select soccer team. ## Petri inks three more Stars to soccer pacts

By ALAN L. GERSTENECKER
Sports Editor
of the Press-Record

GRANITE CITY — With his team 95 percent complete for the coming season, Larry Petri, soccer coach at the Granite City Campus of the Belleville Area College, has signed three more kickers to his 1985 squad.

All St. Louis area high school products, the three include Chris Sonderker, who played three full years and part of a fourth year at Hazelwood Central before transferring to Rosary, is a goalkeeper and will assist returning keeper Jeff Lantz, from Springfield, with the keeping duties.

A four-year starter for Hazelwood Central, Sonderker was selected to Suburban North Conference team his sophomore season, the same year the Hawks won the state soccer championship.

Sonderker will major in business while at GCC.

CLUCAS, a brawny right-winger for Coach Dean Schulenberg's Rams last year, scored six goals and assisted on another.

His senior year, Clucas was selected to the Suburban North Second All-Conference team. A three-year starter, the 6-foot, 170-pound Clucas was a high school teammate of Star Tim Perano, another recent Stars' recruit.

Clucas is undecided on his major. Goldstein, a member of the McCluer Comets' team which faltered much of the season but rallied and finished strong to take third place in last year's Missouri state soccer tournament, is both the smallest and most lethal of Petri's recent recruits.

AT 5-FEET 5-inches tall and 135 pounds, Goldstein paced the Comets with four goals and a whopping 13 assists. Goldstein is a journalism major.

"What I like most about Mark is his proven ability to pass the ball to our forwards," Petri said. "We can always use players who can get the ball to our forward line."

As for Clucas, Petri said of his somewhat silent recruit that he had the opportunity to see him play at Dellwood's Soccer Arena last fall.

"He's a sturdy player," Petri said. "We're looking for him to be able to put the ball in the middle of the field, help us put the ball at the goalmouth."

DISCUSSING his three latest signings, Petri seemed most enthused with the acquisition with Sonderker. "We really didn't want to begin the season with just one keeper," Petri explained of the 5-foot 10-inch, 145-pound goalkeeper. "And, we were in that situation before talking with Chris.

"I had the opportunity to see him play last fall, but I don't believe I saw his best stuff. I think he's got an awful lot of potential. We're looking to mold him into a keeper for our needs," Petri said.

Petri will have a month to make the Sonderker "his kind of keeper." The Stars begin their workouts Monday, Aug. 5, at 3 p.m. at GCC Field and their season opener is Friday, Sept. 6, at Sauk Valley at 1 p.m. The Stars make their home debut against Meramec College on Tuesday, Sept. 10, at 4 p.m.

Prairie State Games

Granite City brought to the Games last year. She couldn't find it for this year. Someone brought a confederate flag. There it was being waved in the air. Fifth place! I almost expected the band to break out in "Dixie" in Hall which is a long way from the land of cotton.

This was a coup for Big Business in this state. It was the donations of businesses and private citizens which dressed the athletes, rolled out the balls, readied the wrestling mats and cleaned the pools.

Opening ceremonies were first-rate. Scott Grote, who has experienced much excitement in the years he spent in soccer at Granite City High, was dazzled by the introductory pizzazz of balloons and fireworks.

Grote said he was caught off-guard by the display, although he remembers last year's being better than the V. P. Fair's.

"They were hanging from the ceiling," Grote said of the fireworks. "Then they dropped balloons. I didn't see those either."

"Grote helped Southern Region's soccer team win a second straight gold medal. But that wasn't his only competition.

"We played frisbee in the hall with plastic popcorn lid," he said with a laugh. Should we also point out the "frisbee games" were conducted at 4 a.m.

The extracurricular activity certainly did not hinder the soccer team's showing. It gave a command performance throughout. "I think we were just better than all the teams," Grote said simply. "We moved the ball with one touch passes. We hit the open man. We were able to finish."

While Southern Region's men's scholastic and open soccer teams won gold medals, my admiration went to the soccer teams which didn't.

You want a perfect definition for "competitor." Let's take a look at 20-year-old Chris Kessler of Granite City. She played forward for Southern Region's open soccer team, which earned a silver medal after losing by 3-2 in overtime to Pioneer in the match for first place.

There was this bandage across her nose, courtesy of a three-way collision. She was in the middle. Her team had played throughout the tournament with just one substitute. Now, moments after it was all over, an overwhelming fatigue was painted across her features. She was sweating, and mascara spilled out around her eyes.

"I'm very tired," she said. "I think everyone had to dig real deep. But we gave them a fight I'll tell you."

Yes they did. But I have little doubt the best fight was waged the previous day, when Southern Region women's scholastic team and Pioneer tied, 2-2. Though it was a semi-final round match, Southern Region had to win in order to qualify for the gold medal round. A tie would be futile.

It was against that backdrop the two teams sparred — back and forth. Twice Southern Region lost the lead only to pull even. Then the gun sounded.

It was a gutsy performance. "I don't think you'll see a better soccer game out here," Southern Region coach Norm Seim said.

Just how disappointed the girls were was evident the next day, when they lost the match for third place, 4-3, despite leading at one point by two goals.

It's not that satisfying winning a bronze medal when you're heart was set on gold. Nonetheless, the shock at failing to even win a bronze medal was shattering. Some of the girls cried.

Then, however, remembering the story of "Bonanza's Bibs," will surely bring a chuckle. It did for Southern Region's Mary Furfuro.

Last Friday evening, Furfuro said some of the girls decided to eat out at a Bonanza Restaurant in Champaign. One thing led to another, and the girls decided to wear bibs back to the dormitory. "It was really stinking in there," said Furfuro.

"It was a mess when we got out of there," said Furfuro, "after stopping food all over the place."

Another thing led to one more thing. The girls decided to wear their bibs back to the dormitory. "It was really stinking in there," said Furfuro.

The "Bonanza Bibs" story also lays to rest an ugly rumor — one that unfolds each fall when Collinsville and Granite City High Schools open their gymnasium doors — that athletes from the two schools are trained to snarl and make faces at each other.

What it did was confirm what a lot of us believe. The rivalry between the two schools is fueled and kept boiling mostly by the townspeople, not the kids.

Furfuro was a senior at Collinsville High. Also among the girls eating at Bonanza were Tammy Wroten, Cindy Bridick and Laura Goodman — all from Granite City.

There were Collinsville and Granite City girls alike who wrinkled their noses — phew! — then smiled at the odor their teammates brought in.

"We had fun," said Furfuro.

Muhl: A big, little man

Stub Muhl was a little man who built a giant football program in the St. Louis metropolitan high school circles whose teams, by their power and skill, were known throughout the good old U.S.A.

Muhl was the coach at University City High School from the time he graduated from the University of Illinois in 1926 and, by the way, played an end and was a teammate of Harold (Red) Grange for the Fighting Illini in their halcyon days, until he retired several years back.

Little Stub Muhl, who was never taller than 5-foot 5-inches, played the end in those great days of Grange. He brought his love for the game from Champaign-Urbana to U. City and the Indians under his coaching never had a losing season.

Stub's national renown grew from his willingness to play any school, anywhere at anytime.

Two big trips the University City Indians took with Muhl calling the signals were in 1936 and 1948. The '36 trip was down to Florida, where they battled Miami High and lost when two touchdowns by their jolting fullback, Joe Skahofsky, were called back.

The '48 trip was to the home city of the Alabama Crimson Tide, when that Rebel State was still reeling from Harry Truman's upset victory over Dewey and the quarterback running with the ball before he passed it was just coming into vogue.

I rode the bus down to Alabama with Muhl and his highly trained gridders and saw at first hand late in November of '48 and on the trip, my first in the Deep South, learned that barbers there were nearly all black men.

And, incidentally, found out that even a Muhl-coached 11 had other interests than football.

The first morning of the team's arrival at the Alabama campus, I got up, I thought rather early, only to find that most of the boys were already up, showered and dressed and standing on the quad in front of our dormitory.

And, to a man, looking at a newly built girls' residence across the way from our dorm. I couldn't figure out the boys' keen interest in building. It was like many other box-like housing structures thrown up throughout America right after the close of World War II to solve the huge housing scarcity we had at the time.

When I arrived in the front of the building and joined the young men looking up at the girls' dormitory, I saw what had captured the fellows' attention. On the second floor, in a corner room, the guys were watching a show they couldn't pass up. The sight of the girls taking showers. And, plainly visible to them.

Through a one-way brick window wall, the workman, or workmen, had installed the windows the wrong way much to the delight of the fellows.

Dick Braznell and his uncle, John, were the main source of my information about Stub Muhl and the great football history he wrote at University City High School.

Some of the great Indian football players were, not in importance, but just as they came to my mind: Braznell, Dick that is, played his last prep game at U. City in his senior year in 1945, and then went on to Ole Missouri where he starred at right halfback along with another great back, Gloria. It (1945) marked the first year of Muhl's return from the Navy during the war. Dick played for Muhl, then, just one year. Frosty Englund coached football at U. City High when Stub was in the service.

Other U. City immortal gridders were: Dr. Dick Torre, M.D., still practicing in St. Louis; Terry Falls, who went on to star for Vanderbilt U.; and Jack Davison who enrolled at Princeton U. and starred for the great teams Princeton U. had in late 1940 and early 1950s. He was everyone's All-American.

A little above the average was Geri Alger, one heck of a good tackle, and scholastic All-American shot-putter.

One of Muhl's early stars was Harry Decker who went on to star at Washington University during the Bears' glory days as the Depression darkened and grew.

In the early 1930s, Decker would come back to U. City and give Muhl "a hand" with the Indians. This was, of course, in the days before even prep coaches had a large staff of assistants.

Muhl used mostly the double-wing with an unbalanced line, according to John Braznell, an uncle of Dick. John was on the great U. City team which played down in Miami, and as reminds one and all: "We played both on defense and offense in those days." He was an end and a tackle.

On the trip to Alabama I got a slight hint as to why Stub Muhl was a great coach. He was a man who believed in fundamentals and left nothing to chance.

On that bus trip, I can remember as if it were just yesterday, Coach Muhl would call out the number of a play and the players were all expected, in turn, to tell what he was to do. He did it over and over and there was little doubt what was expected of each and everyone.

Funny thing, though, the Indian players didn't perform as if by rote. And played with a flair coming with knowing for sure what they were doing.

Now, as he has done for the last 44 years, Coach Muhl is in Minnesota where he has conducted a camp for boys and girls all these years.

FOR PET'S SAKE

by James R. Hill, D.V.M.

ON DOG BONES
Dogs and bones seem to go together, at least in the popular imagination. Comics and cartoons are always portraying dogs protecting a measured bone, burying it, or trying to remember where they put it.

Although bones do supply a small amount of calcium and phosphorus, commercial bone meal is a better source. However, in spite of their limited nutritional value, bones are still good for dogs. They are excellent for growing puppies to dislodge them from destroying household effects. They also provide hours of pleasure and freedom from boredom. They exercise the gums and help keep the teeth free from tartar.

Be careful what bones you give your dog. Bones of chicken, rabbit, fish, and the small bones of lamb, pork, or veal should never be used. Best are large beef bones, and some bones of lamb or pork. Also, there are some dogs that cannot digest bones in any form and vomit them or become constipated. In this case, dog biscuits are an excellent substitute.

HELPFUL HINT:

Before buying and using an over-the-counter wormer for your pet, consult your veterinarian. Since there is no remedy for all intestinal parasites, a feces exam may be necessary to determine the real culprit and to select the best medication for the situation.

State, U.S. computers comparing your tax forms, or lack of same

Every year, computers from state and federal agencies have a conversation with computers at the Illinois Department of Revenue. As a result, thousands of would-be tax cheats are caught, and the state of Illinois is millions of dollars richer.

More than 13,000 people who did not file Illinois income tax returns, or underpaid their taxes, will receive notices this week that they were caught red-handed — by a computer.

THROUGH THIS automated tax enforcement program, the Department of Revenue sifts through records of the 1985, other states, governmental agencies, and federal sources.

If the computer sniffs out a discrepancy — such as income not reported on the Illinois return or too many exemptions — or if the outside computers point out someone who has neglected to file the required tax returns, the state immediately begins collection proceedings.

Collection efforts for this year's computer enforcement program began July 15. The collection process begins with a computer-generated letter, notifying a person of the problem and asking for the dollars due.

THE MACHINE is programmed to catch most legitimate errors, such as transposed numerals on Social Security numbers.

training at Lackland Air Force Base near San Antonio, Texas, she is scheduled to receive technical training as an administrative specialist. Pyle, a 1985 graduate of Granite City High School, will be earning credits towards an associate in applied sciences degree through the Community College of the Air Force while attending basic and technical training schools.

"The computer also calculates the tax due, and machines sort and mail the notices," says J. Thomas Johnson, director of the Illinois Department of Revenue. "If we have no response from the computer-generated letters, then we issue a statutory notice of delinquency, which gives us the legal authority to go after the tax due."

"Sixty percent of those who owe state taxes have paid up by this point."

THOSE WHO DO NOT respond are subject to having liens placed on their property, having their property seized, or having the state confiscate any income, tax refunds or lottery winnings due from the state.

Protests are rare, Johnson said, "because most of the time we've caught them red-handed. Those who do disagree with us can go through an administrative appeal, and could ultimately go to court to plead their case."

Other enforcement efforts include comparing notes with the Internal Revenue Service on federal audits, he said.

"IF THE IRS finds that you owe additional taxes, then you are also required to file an amended state tax return within 20 days," Johnson added.

He explained that Illinois taxpayers use the "adjusted gross income" line on the federal tax return as a starting place for calculating state income taxes. If a federal audit changes the "adjusted gross income" line, then it changes the state tax amount due as well.

"But many people don't know that, or don't think about it, or try to get away with it. They probably don't know how efficient we are and don't know that we are getting this information from the IRS," Johnson said. "SOMETIMES THEY just don't know any better. Sometimes following an audit report, after we send out the computer-generated letter, we'll get a call from a taxpayer saying, 'But I've already paid you.' We ask them to send proof of payment, and they send us a copy of the check sent to the IRS. They don't realize they have to pay the state, too."

There is no statute of limitations on prosecuting violators caught through the federal audit report.

The state caught $5.4 million in taxes owed through the tape match and audit programs during the first 10 months of Fiscal Year 1986. More than 20,000 individuals were caught underpaying or not paying their taxes through the two programs.

COMPUTER TAPE matches are made once a year, but audit information swaps are handled year-round.

The Department of Revenue also shares its information with the IRS, Johnson said.

Information from IRS returns is totally confidential, as is Illinois tax information.

DATA CONTAINED in the returns is only revealed at the request of the taxpayer or by court order.

The computer enforcement program makes it possible for the Department of Revenue to pursue would-be tax cheats more efficiently and at a more reasonable cost than through conducting audits on personal returns, Johnson said. And, he added, there will be more computer comparisons available soon.

Season of heatstroke and heat exhaustion brings warnings, tips

(The Aid Station)

The tennis courts were empty during the noon hour, and Bob and Dan thought they were lucky to find an open court.

But halfway through the vigorous set, Dan felt more scared than lucky. His partner had collapsed on the court.

With the day's high temperature and humidity, and the hot sun beating on the asphalt surface, Bob's body couldn't cool itself off fast enough. The result was heatstroke, the condition that occurs when excessive heat accumulates inside the body.

The symptoms of heatstroke are dry skin, high temperature, dizziness, nausea or vomiting, disorientation, blurred vision, headache and, in some cases, coma.

Heat stroke can affect anyone, regardless of age or degree of fitness.

When the body gets exceedingly warm from a combination of high temperature and humidity and overexertion, the normal cooling process breaks down. The body stops perspiring, and the heat is trapped inside.

To treat heatstroke:

1. Move the victim to a cool, shaded environment.

2. Lower the body temperature quickly by sponging the victim with cold, wet towels, or by immersion in water.

3. Administer liquids in small amounts if the person is fully conscious.

4. Seek immediate medical care.

Heatstroke's hot weather companion, heat exhaustion, is also caused by too much exertion in warm weather.

Its symptoms, extreme fatigue, dizziness, excessive perspiration and fainting, are caused by the excessive loss of salt.

The heat exhaustion victim needs to drink small amounts of fluids to which a pinch of salt and sugar have been added.

Both of these summertime hazards can be avoided by following these recommendations.

Avoid strenuous activities — sports, work, exercise — in high temperature and humidity.

In the sun, wear loose-fitting, light-colored clothing.

Wear a hat.

Drink plenty of non-alcoholic liquids.

Ask your physician about increasing salt in your diet.

Slow down.

Follow the example of the natives of tropical climates and rest in the shade or indoors during summer's mid-day heat.

Yard, garage sales can be painless, fun and profitable

By CATHERINE MAUCK
Madison County Adviser on Home Economics

Sale-ing is America's favorite late-summer sport.

And, believe it or not, having a garage sale can be almost as painless as going to one. Planning is the key to making the sale run smoothly and profitably.

Visiting other sales in your area is a good way to begin planning your own. It's often hard to price items you intend to sell, but seeing what others are asking for similar items can help guide you.

You may also pick up pointers on how to — and how not to — display and mark merchandise.

Saturday is the most popular day for garage sales, because both buyers and sellers have more free time.

Preparations for a Saturday-morning sale should be completed on Friday night. All items should be priced and tagged before the sale begins.

Once you have established a starting time for the sale, decide how you'll handle "early birds." If you will not bargain with early buyers, you may want to say "no early sales" in your ads or posters.

However, the early buyer is often a serious buyer. If someone comes asking to see a specific item you have advertised, you may want to give that customer the sneak peek he or she asks for. That person could be the only one interested in that item all day long. Saying no, especially if it is a big item, could mean no sale.

Decide in advance whether you will accept checks or if all sales will be "cash only." Fishing-tackle boxes are great for keeping money at a garage sale, but any covered box will do.

Before the sale begins, establish boundaries between the selling area and the private areas of your home. A sign or barricade should do, but you may want to have a friend or relative stay in the house while you are busy tending to the sale.

If you plan to display your merchandise in the yard, you probably should have a contingency plan in case it rains or is windy on the day of the sale. In case your yard sale has become a garage sale, be sure there is adequate lighting in the garage — stormy days are often dark days.

Garage sales usually attract the most people when several families pool their efforts and merchandise. Planning is especially important for multi-family sales because the property and profits of several families are involved.

One simple way of keeping track of who gets money for what is to put colored tags or stickers on the items, using a different color for each family's goods. The "cashier" should keep a list of sales, being careful to credit the right family or individual for each item sold.

Granite City BPW club hears talk on preparations for life's challenges

Joyce Mitchell, staff assistant to the public relations director at St. Elizabeth Medical Center, was the guest speaker at a dinner meeting of the Granite City Business and Professional Women's organization at Charlie's Restaurant.

Rose Stern, membership co-chairman of the group, introduced her. "Life - A Special Event" was the topic of Mrs. Mitchell, who cited such factors as planning, unpredictability, challenges, fears and fun.

"In planning one should set goals, prepare a budget and establish priorities by using a work list. We should expect the unexpected and, when it happens, be flexible to think about it and not panic."

"Look for challenges in your life, on the job, with your fellow employees and with your friends and be ready to accept the challenges as a way to grow and broaden your horizons," she said.

The mother of five children, Mrs. Mitchell operated a dance studio on a part-time basis in 1970 and in 1974 began a full-time work schedule at the Medical Center as a clerk in the admissions office. After a year, she decided to enroll in courses at Belleville Area College and the following year she was accepted as secretary to the public relations director.

Since that time she has received several promotions and is now responsible for planning special events each year for SEMC.

Janet Mills gave a history of the Granite City BPW for the guests and members and noted the orientation topic for August will relate to District XIV.

President Becky Slate welcomed two new members, Pat Bax and Lisa Panning. She said all information for the yearbook is due no later than Aug. 1 and should be forwarded to Florence Moore.

It was announced the budget has been prepared and audit completed, with both reports to be available at the August meeting for discussion and action. Other meetings scheduled include the legislative committee at Hazel Rollins' home Aug. 12 at 7 p.m. and the ways and means committee there Aug. 13 at 7 p.m.

Those serving on the membership committee are: Gwen Iken, co-chairman, Mrs. Stern, Annelien Smith, Mrs. Rollins and Ruth Walk.

Dancers learn about health

By JUDY LANDERS

Lynda Davis and her husband, Dr. Robert Davis, are a team that offers an unusual combination. She leads young dancers in the "language" and development of movement. He educates dancers in the prevention of injuries and maintenance of their "instrument."

Mrs. Davis, a diminutive dancer, choreographer and teacher, came to Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville to conduct a "Dance Residency in Modern Dance and Dance Therapy" workshop as part of the SummerArts Festival '85 program.

The limited enrollment of 15 participants ensured one-on-one involvement with the Davises. That proved to be beneficial in each session. In improvisation, choreographer Davis could be heard challenging individuals. "Get your knee up higher Mary Ann...higher, Margie...ball, point, toe...ball, heel...come on Shawn."

While the group takes a five-minute break, a male student approaches Mrs. Davis for advice about a problem he experiences in pointing his toes. "The extended foot is established from here," she says as she shows him an exercise to strengthen the proper muscles. As he begins the exercise, she urges him to relax and concentrate on the overall form: "view yourself like a Leonardo DaVinci drawing."

After the session ends for the day, Lynda Davis sits down with a carton of Mott's apple juice and talks about her experiences. She has performed all over the world. That fact is somewhat surprising for a girl who majored in physical education and never considered a career in dance until she was in college.

"Movement has always been my first language," she explained. When she was an undergraduate at San Jose State in California, she wanted to teach. "I didn't really think about professional dance. Someone tells you, 'You can be.' You don't necessarily know yourself. I had good mentors," she recalled. She met husband Bob while they were both student teaching in P.E. Dr. Davis has been a teacher now for 25 years, and his involvement in team teaching with his artist wife has evolved primarily from his return to schooling to gain his Ph.D. in addition to his Doctor of Chiropractic degree. He currently serves on the faculty of Pasadena College of Chiropractic.

They have what might be called a commuter marriage, with Lynda performing on the road in addition to her position as a resident artist at Florida State. Their relationship is a positive experience for both.

"We've always been a great combination," Bob Davis says with a warm smile, when asked about working with his wife.

She has put together their appreciation with their surroundings. "This campus invites you. It asks 'What do you want to do here?'" Lynda says, explaining that she is impressed with the workshop designed by associate professor of dance Audrey Tallant.

They both expressed their appreciation for the progressive summer program. This is the third year of a five-year SummerArts program so it's building each year. And it's drawing students who return each year, so there's a layering effect," Mrs. Davis explained.

The program is also generating a national reputation. "One of the students is Lori Katterny, a dance major at the University of Houston in Huntsville, Texas. She'll take her experience back to her students - new ideas, new artists, and new dance companies will emerge from workshops like these," Mrs. Davis believes.

She added: "It's the layers that support what a department does the rest of the year. It's integrated into a long-range program."

The success of a workshop depends on the make-up of the participants' skills, the setting, the attitude and the atmosphere, according to Mrs. Davis.

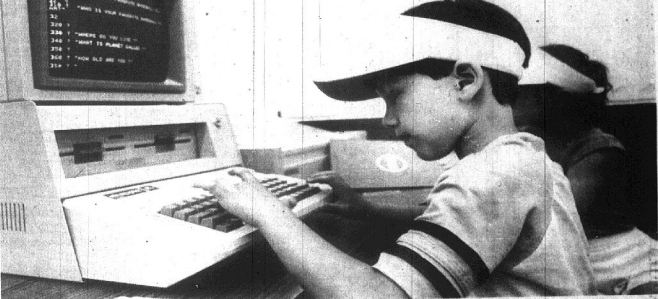

"Here it is unique. Everything is here for success - the understanding, the equipment, - even access to a library card - Audrey thought of everything," she added. "When you only have a few days, you want to make as much chaos as you can, so that students stretch their own sense of themselves as dance artists."

The first week of the workshop was devoted to dance technique in the morning sessions and instruction by Bob Davis in the afternoon. On the second day the students gathered to see a slide presentation on the anatomy of dance.

Looking at slides of the metatarsal and the achilles tendon, and talking about muscular imbalance would normally cause an audience's eyes to glaze over after 10 minutes. But Dr. Davis's presentation accompanying the slides holds the student's attention. Students interrupt frequently with specific questions about personal experiences with strained muscles.

The lecture concludes after 90 minutes and students line up to speak to Dr. Davis personally. One student, who explains that he experiences strained hamstring muscles frequently, is urged to lie down for an examination by the doctor. He concludes that the student has weak hamstrings, and that there are muscles and tendons that can be done to strengthen them.

"The intent of these two weeks for both myself and Bob is to give dancers a chance to go beyond what is now comfortable to them. In order to do that, they have to have a very full experience," Lynda Davis explained.

SIUE seeks $1.6 million for programs

New state resources totaling $1.6 million are needed for program requests included in the Resource Allocation and Management Program (RAMP) planning documents for Fiscal Year 1987 at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, approved by the SIUE Board of Trustees for submission to the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

Three new program requests approved and the funds requested were: Division of the existing department of mathematics, statistics, and computer science, School of Sciences, into two new departments, the department of mathematics and statistics and the department of computer science, no additional funds requested;

Master of Marketing Research, which requests approval for both a new degree title and a new degree program, $109,700; and Project for Excellence in Teaching, $322,700.

Four program expansion requests and one special analytical study were presented and described in the plan. The programs, special activities and resources requested include: Bachelor of Science in Engineering Programs, $199,000; Center for Advanced Manufacturing and Production, $232,550; Master of Business Administration - Rend Lake, $85,650; School of Nursing, $33,500; and Academic Computing and Management Systems, $627,100.

The Project for Excellence in Teaching proposes means of improving the quality of education from kindergarten through college. Funding is requested to establish visiting fellowships for public school teachers, provide for positions in several teaching specialties, and provide support services.

GCC sets air conditioning classes

Belleville Area College's Granite City Campus is offering day classes for air conditioning, heating and refrigeration students for the first time this fall.

Al Becker, coordinator of BAC's ACHR program, said the program is being offered at Granite City campus to accommodate people in the northern part of BAC's district. They have had many requests for a day program from people in Granite City, Alton and Wood River.

Electrical Controls for ACHR will be offered from noon to 12:50 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays. Air Conditioning and Refrigeration I will be offered from 9 to 11:50 a.m. Mondays and Wednesdays.

Students in the ACHR program learn to repair and install all types of air conditioning, heating and refrigeration equipment.

Students can take ACHR classes to learn a new trade or to upgrade their skills so they can work on electrical equipment.

"It's an open-ended program for people coming out of high school," Becker said. "They can start working in the field or go on to get a four-year degree."

The program is accepted for transfer to technical schools and some four-year universities, he said. The number of hours that will transfer depends on the school to which you transfer.

Students can receive a certificate of program proficiency or an associate of applied science degree. Students must complete 32 credit hours of classes to earn a certificate. Sixty-five credit hours of class are required for an associate's degree.

GCC has equipped a classroom for the program.

"We have moved into a new classroom that has been modified for our needs," Becker said. "It is second to none for teaching ACHR."

GCC has had a full ACHR evening program for the last two years.

The program was started on the Belleville campus in 1973.

This past year, 100 percent of the program's graduates found jobs, Becker said.

"Students go into industry and job shops," he said. "Our people are being hired to work on air conditioning and refrigeration in local shops like Snyder Climate Control in Red Bud and Kohl Heating and Cooling in Belleville."

"We have people working at Hussmann in St. Louis, the Callaway County Nuclear Plant and Granite City Steel. Our students also have found work in Texas, Alaska and Puerto Rico."

"We have one student who is teaching at Johnson Vocational Center in Alton," he said.

Gary Barnstahl and Jerry Webb, both graduates from BAC's ACHR program and Granite City residents, are instructors for the program at GCC.

"They have about 40 years of experience between the two of them," Becker said. "They were hired because of their experience and knowledge."

"Barnstahl is self employed and has been in business for 25 years. He owns Gary's Heating and Cooling in Granite City."

"Webb works for the Granite City school district in air conditioning and heating maintenance for the schools."

Delta Queen to take cruise on Mississippi, Ohio rivers

A three-day cruise on the legendary Delta Queen, a rare opportunity to be aboard America's most famous steamboat, is a special offering by the American Association of Railroaders Inc., a non-profit education and historical organization that has an interest in historic transportation.

The AAR has been traveling on the Delta Queen for 15 years, and because of this special relationship, the organization has secured space for 40 passengers to enjoy this special advantage.

On Sunday, Aug. 11, passengers may begin boarding at 5 p.m., with departure set for 7 p.m. Following the cast-off callopie concert in the shadow of the Arch, an evening buffet will be served. Entertainment, music for dancing and the start of this two-river adventure will scarcely be underway before the lights of river towns along the Mississippi River turn the calendar back 100 years.

Passengers on this mini-cruise will enjoy the full privileges aboard:

- ed those making the week-long trip at a fraction of the cost. After steaming down the mighty "father of waters," the Delta Queen will head up the Ohio River with its system of locks and dams enroute to Paducah, Ky. While the guests are on board, there will be three deluxe meals and three snacks per day, along with kite flying, sing-alongs or plain old riverboat relaxin'.
- The fare of $375 per person, double occupancy, includes the two-night cruise with a stateroom of upper and lower berths, all meals and entertainment, plus a chartered motor coach return to St. Louis. Parking for cars will be available at the Mansion House Garage for a fee of $18 and the motor coach will return to that location in downtown St. Louis.
- The assignment of cabins (a few may be deluxe with twin beds) will be made in the order that checks are received. Reservations may be obtained by sending a check to AAR, 3422 Osage St., St. Louis, Mo. 63118. For more information, the phone number is 1-314-752-3148.

Victor Borge slated at Fox

Victor Borge will bring his one-man show to The Fabulous Fox Theater July 30 through Aug. 4. Borge is an acclaimed musician with the ability to laugh at the music he worships, at life, and above all, himself. The gift has made him an international star with box office magnetism.

Last season marked his 75th birthday celebration tour with a tribute from President Reagan, a list of gala concerts and a record-breaking 12-performance engagement before capacity audiences at Carnegie Hall.

He also took a number of small vacations from the theater and concert halls to be guest conductor of various symphony orchestras. A performance of the opera "Carmen," starring Robert Merrill, in a 10,000-seat arena in Hartford, Conn., with Maestro Borge conducting and acting as a success.

Borge hopes he has brought new audiences to the concert hall by making them feel comfortable with the music. He says people shouldn't be afraid of music: "Every sound is music. Drop a stone on someone's foot and he says 'ouch—that's a sound.' Do it three times and you have a waltz."

Tickets may be purchased at the Fox Box Office at 527 N. Grand Blvd., St. Louis, Regal Sports at 3131 Olive and all Famous Barr and Dillard's Ticketmaster locations.

Industries oppose power rates; citizens want Clinton scrapped

By DENNIS MCMURRAY
SPRINGFIELD — Representatives of both industry and consumer groups urged the Illinois Commerce Commission July 16 to deny most of Illinois Power Company's current electric rate hike request tied to its Clinton nuclear plant construction costs.

The ICC heard closing oral arguments on IP's current request for a 19 percent overall rate increase, or $139 million a year in new revenues.

THE INCREASE for residential customers would be about 22.5 percent. The ICC must decide on the rate request no later than Aug. 11.

About 70 percent of the request represents a proposed $62 million in additional Clinton construction costs or "construction work in progress" (CWIP) to be included in the rate base charged to consumers.

A total of $625 million in Clinton costs was previously included in the rate base by the ICC in rate cases in 1979, 1981 and 1983. The last rate hike for IP, in January 1983, was 10.3 percent overall.

Attorneys for the Citizens Utility Board, the Governor's Office of Consumer Services, and a group of large industrial customers — including Olin Corp. and Granite City — urged the ICC to deny all of the additional CWIP costs requested in the latest rate case, in effect eliminating most of the rate hike.

THEY ARGUED that the ICC's own criteria for allowing IP to include Clinton costs in previous cases were not met in the current rate case.

Eric Robertson of Granite City, attorney for the industrial customers, argued that circumstances have changed since the prior rate cases. IP's financial ratios have improved, inflation and interest rates are down and, most importantly, the utility has testified it does not intend to borrow any more money to complete Clinton, but intends to use remaining costs of the plant through capitol raised by selling more stock to its employees, Robertson said.

IP Attorney Alan Horwich concentrated much of his oral argument Tuesday on contending the utility is in danger of having its Standard and Poor's credit rating downgraded if it is not given the requested rate hike and the added CWIP.

HORWICH ALSO argued inclusion of more CWIP costs benefited ratepayers by lowering financing costs and reducing "rate shock" to customers when the plant is completed.

Robertson, however, compared IP's Clinton plant with the Callaway nuclear plant put in operation in Missouri by Union Electric Co. earlier this year.

He noted the UE plant was started about the same time, but was completed much faster and at less cost without UE being allowed to pass on any construction costs to ratepayers until the plant was actually in service.

Robertson noted UE's bond rating and stock prices went up after Callaway was finished despite the plant's cost overruns.

GARY PETERS, attorney for the Governor's Office of Consumer Services, carried the argument further, contending a law passed two years ago designed to phase out the use of CWIP — barred the ICC from granting any additional Clinton construction costs in the IP rate base until the plant is in service.

Although some of the ICC commissioners appeared to disagree with his interpretation of the law, Peters contended it barred any more CWIP being granted to IP unless within 12 months of Clinton going into service, which Peters said would be at least until November 1986.

Peters also cited testimony by IP officials that they intend to seek another rate hike in September, almost immediately after the current case is decided in August, as another reason for denying the current request.

HE SAID ALLOWING IP in the past to pass on Clinton construction costs had encouraged poor management of the facility's construction and if CWIP had been denied, costs would either have been reduced or the plant would have been canceled as uneconomical.

Citizens Utility Board (CUB) attorney Deborah Senn said IP had "concocted" elaborate theories to justify charging ratepayers more for the "voracious Clinton appetite."

She contended much of the testimony and methodology advanced by IP witnesses to support its CWIP request was faulty and failed to meet regulatory standards.

Although IP has been granted a total of more than 41 percent in overall electric rate hike increases since 1979, the utility's attorney said it still has some of the lowest rates in the Midwest.

IN ADDITION to the IP rate hike request, the ICC has two other Clinton-related cases pending before it.

One is an independent outside audit of Clinton construction cost overruns. The other is a study of phasing in the remaining cost of the plant if and when it finally comes into service.

IP has put Clinton's total cost at $3.15 billion, almost eight times the projected cost when the project was started in 1973.

THE UTILITY has blamed the escalation on a combination of inflation and additional federal regulatory requirements that followed the Three Mile Island incident.

Both the Governor's Office of Consumer Services and IP have urged the ICC to order Clinton scrapped.

They say it would be cheaper for ratepayers in the long run than the cost of completing and operating the nearly-finished electric generating plant.

Pontoon man is charged in July 10 fatal accident

Donald Sharp, 33, of Pontoon Beach has been charged in connection with a July 10 hit-and-run accident on Illinois Route 111, one-half mile south of State Aid 35.

Sharp was charged with failure to report a motor vehicle accident involving injuries, according to the Madison County Sheriff's Office staff. He was served with a warrant Monday.

Charles Wiley, 36, of Alton was seriously injured after a car hit his motorcycle in the rear as Wiley was slowing to make a left turn.

Mr. Wiley died July 11 at Firmin Desloge Hospital in St. Louis.

Named to lead state arson investigations

Edward M. Nickels, 54, retired Chicago police department Bomb and Arson Section commander, will be joining the Illinois Office of the State Fire Marshal (OSFM) as director of the Arson Investigation Division, it was announced by Fire Marshal Harold L. Schneidmiller.

Nickels' staff of 18 arson and fire investigators will serve throughout the state in the OSFM's offices in Chicago, Marion and Springfield.

FIRE CAUSED BY WIRING DAMAGES GC RESIDENCE

The home of Dale Barnett, 753 N. 27th Place, was damaged July 20 when a fire broke out in the basement and spread to an upstairs bedroom. Fire officials attributed the blaze to faulty electrical wiring.

The amount of damage to the home was not immediately determined, but firemen said smoke and heat caused extensive damage to the residence.

PURSE TAKEN FROM AUTO

Geneva Chastain of 2032 Missouri Ave. reported July 22 someone removed her purse from her auto while the vehicle was awaiting repairs at 21st Street and Washington Avenue. The purse contained identification cards, prescription medicine and a wallet.

State tooting its own horn to lure tourists from afar

Illinois' tourism campaign has generated nearly 90,000 telephone calls to the Department of Commerce and Community Affairs' toll-free number and prompted 10,000 written requests for information from as far away as Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

Local tourism officials also are praising the campaign for dramatically boosting attendance at Downstate events by attracting visitors not only from the Chicago area but from Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Missouri and Wisconsin as well.

"Our 1985 Vermilion County Civil War Days Festival had the largest turnout ever," said Linda Fryer, executive director of the Danville Area Convention and Visitor's Bureau. "That success is due in large part to the state's Civil War commercial. We were answering phones and letters continuously."

ATTENDANCE THIS YEAR was nearly double last year, hotel occupancy rates reached 100 percent and area campgrounds set records.

A second message featuring Peoria Steamboat Days had a similar effect. Grant Mathey, executive director of the Peoria Convention and Visitors Bureau, also credited the state campaign for helping the event register substantial attendance increases over previous years.

Mathey said Peoria police estimated the crowd at about 200,000 for the two and a half days of festivities, up from the previous year's 125,000.

THE CIVIL WAR and Peoria Steamboat Days were among 12 television commercials, 24 radio spots and 14 newspaper and magazine ads produced by Zechman and Associates Advertising Inc. of Chicago.

Featured in major markets within a 500-mile radius of Illinois, the ads emphasized family travel by focusing on weekend vacations. The campaign, coordinated by DCCA's Office of Tourism, will run through Labor Day.

"When the campaign was unveiled in April, we were optimistic about its effect on the public's perception of Illinois as a travel destination," said DCCA Director Michael T. Wolfert. "The number of telephone calls and information requests demonstrates the effectiveness."

THIS IS THE FIRST time Illinois has had the funds to aggressively market its many tourist attractions. But our work has just begun.

"The task ahead is to keep the good work about Illinois before the public. The interest the campaign has generated eventually will translate into state and local revenue as well as jobs in the tourist industry."

An integral part of the campaign is a telemarketing program which encourages people to call toll-free to receive a general information packet on Illinois, Chicago or both. Business Services, a Mt. Prospect-based firm handling calls for DCCA's Office of Tourism, is averaging 1,000 inquiries per day. The toll-free number is 800-223-0121.

New telephone system for schools

By DAVE WHALEY

GRANITE CITY — A new telephone system will be purchased by Granite City School District 9 for $45,015.

The board voted 6-0 July 16 to purchase a new system from Continental Telephone for installation at the school board offices and in the school buildings.

THE DISTRICT received bids from 17 vendors for a new system and after consultation with N. Lee and Associates, a communications consulting firm in St. Louis.

The board had the option to either buy the system outright or make a lease purchase. A lease purchase, however, from Continental would have been $989.61 per month for five years, or a total cost of just under $50,000.

Memorial fund is set up for Dawn Padgett

A memorial fund has been established at First Granite City National Bank for Dawn Padgett, 17, of Granite City, who died July 21 after being diagnosed as having Hodgkin's Disease.

The memorial had originally been set up as a trust fund to help pay for her hospital expenses, which are in excess of $200,000.

She is survived by her father, Don Padgett, a custodian at Granite City High School, and her mother, Kathy Kahn.

She had been in and out of St. Elizabeth Medical Center for much of the past year and was most recently in the Barnes Hospital Respiratory Intensive Care Unit.

Dawn had undergone chemotherapy and radiation therapy, but had suffered setbacks with pneumonia and an infection. A bone marrow transplant was to have been scheduled with her brother, Chris, 15, as the donor, in hopes of building up her blood count.

Dawn began receiving chemical and radiation therapy. She had received over 50 units of blood and platelets.

Dawn attended Granite City High School with the class of 1985 and played basketball in her freshman and sophomore years.

The trust fund was set up by

A three-year maintenance plan could have been included at a cost of $12,225 but that "would not have been economically advantageous," according to school administrators.

THE AVERAGE TIME between major system failures with this system is 46.7 months, anyway," said Nathan Lee of N. Lee and Associates. "So I don't really think the district would need that maintenance contract, but it would be available."

According to the terms of the bid, the district will get 30 days of use before giving final approval to the new system.

Norman Owca, director of finance for the district, said the system will be paid for out of the building fund because that fund now has more cash in it after some end-of-the-fiscal year cash transfers.

THE BOARD ALSO approved projections of almost $2.6 million in expenditures for future life safety, handicapped and energy conservation measures. The goal is to use less fuel, improve fire safety, and simplify movement about the buildings for physically handicapped students and adults.

State law mandates all school buildings be resurveyed for safety purposes by September. Surveys of Granite City school buildings have been completed and will be forwarded to the regional superintendent of schools in Edwardsville and the Illinois State Board of Education.

The reports were done by Henry Gabriel, an architect, who made 915 recommendations for the 13 buildings surveyed. Recommendations are broken down into three priorities: urgent, necessary and not required but considered desirable.

BIDS ACCEPTED included one for $12,943 from Lakeside Roofing of Granite City for installation of a Carlisle-style roof on the board office building.

According to Ron Landman, director of buildings and grounds for the district, action on the roof was delayed from May because Lakeside did not know if it would be certified as applicator of a Deriburg roof. The district will now install a Carlisle roof.

It has a 10-year guarantee, as does the Deriburg.

The board changed the contract of Kenneth Spalding, the new principal of Grigsby Junior High School, from a 12-month contract to a 10-month contract. He is a former high school and junior high assistant principal.

Granite City Steel Employees Federal Credit Union WILL BE CLOSED

THURSDAY, AUGUST 1, 1985
FRIDAY, AUGUST 2, 1985

This closing is due to a change in computer systems. This new system will greatly speed up service to the membership. We hope this will not inconvenience our members to any great extent.

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED

Attorney At Law

Sometimes people who sustain a personal injury will be contacted by an insurance adjuster with an offer to pay only the medical bills. The question that arises in this situation is whether this is a fair offer. As the following examples will demonstrate, this depends upon how the accident occurred and the liability in the particular case.

One man contacted this office and indicated that he had slipped in a grocery store and fallen backwards. He did not know what caused him to fall, but he hurt his back and was under the care of an orthopedic surgeon. He received a call from the grocery chain's insurance company offering to pay the medical bills and nothing more.

In making the decision whether to accept this offer, it is important to realize that "slip and fall" cases are generally very difficult for a Plaintiff to win. An injured party must show some degree of fault; otherwise known as liability, on the part of the grocery store. In other words, the Plaintiff would have to show that the object on the floor which caused him to fall was there as a result of the store employee's negligence or that it was there long enough for the grocery store to have notice and therefore clean it up.

The payment of only medical bills may be all the Plaintiff can hope for in a case such as this. Certainly more would have to be known before an informed decision could be made. However, in that the person did not know what caused him to fall and since the slippery floor could have been caused by a customer rather than a store employee, this case could prove to be difficult from a liability standpoint.

In another case, a woman was in an automobile accident and she was rear-ended. She sustained neck and back injuries on the facts tended to indicate that the other driver was totally at fault. The insurance company for the driver at fault offered to fix her car and pay her medical bills. If she accepted this amount in settlement in full, this would probably be far less than she would otherwise receive. It is obvious that each case should be decided on an individual basis after consulting with one's attorney.

Rapp, Lakeview to be resurfaced

By RACHEL NEWSOME

A bid to repave 400 feet of Rapp Road and 1,200 feet of Lakeview Drive, amounting to $16,000, was approved by Chouteau Township trustees Monday. Camm Construction Ltd. of Alton submitted the bid.

Highway Commissioner Joe Stefauff assured the board that Camm's proposal meets all requirements and is within the highway department's budget.

Chouteau's Long Lake Park development project has been completed by Juneau Associates and Themes Construction. It was reported.

THE PROJECT included construction of drainage ditches and road shoulders at Lakeview Drive and Rapp Road. A final payment to Themes, amounting to $5,664, was authorized. The total project cost was $52,344.

The board approved a request from the community's senior citizen organization; $280 will be given to the group to pay round-trip bus fare to the Illinois State Fair in Springfield, on a Gray Line bus for 40 seniors.

"The senior citizens do a good job on the commodity distribution. Without them, we would really have to change some things," said Supervisor Morris Miles.

A WEED PROBLEM has plagued Chouteau residents for some time, it was noted. Pending further legal

Residents complain about Georgetown Drive

By SUSANNE INDELICATO

PONTON BEACH — The condition of Georgetown Drive was the subject of complaints by several residents at Tuesday's meeting of the Pontoon Beach Village Board of Trustees.

"That street is an abortion down there. It's a mess," said Steve Knogl of 22 Westgate Drive.

RECENT RAINFALL left water in the road because the road needs grading, Don Wolf of 29 Westgate Drive told the board.

"The problem is Darrell Layman. C.D. Peters (Construction Co.) won't start until Layman gets it (Georgetown Drive) graded," Board President Glen Wilson told the residents.

Wilson was referring to a year-old contract with C.D. Peters to chip and seal the road. However, Peters feels it cannot begin work on the road until Layman, who is building homes in Lakeview Estates, grades it.

"If it is asphalted, it will just get torn up again while he's constructing," Trustee Loren Madison said. "That is a cop-out that if you had a street you would tear it up if you built a house," Wolf responded.

364-day jail sentence follows highway chase

John F. Walker, 22, Tucson, Ariz., has been sentenced to 364 days in the Madison County jail. Associate Judge Charles V. Romani gave concurrent terms of 364 days on aggravated assault, property damage, reckless conduct and driving with a revoked license.

Romani ordered a $500 fine for speeding and concurrent six-month jail terms for reckless driving and two counts of fleeing from officers. Court costs to be paid total $245. Walker led police of several departments on an auto chase from 20 miles north of Springfield to Collinsville July 15.

"Everyone wants to know when the road will be sealed. If it's September, tell us October. If it's October, tell us next June."

The residents said Georgetown Drive should be sealed before bad weather hits the area.

WILSON TOLD them he would meet with the village attorney to see what can be done to get the road graded. He noted a stop-order has been issued on the development of five lots in the area.

Wolf later told a reporter that, in his view, allowing someone to build homes before roads are built is comparable to letting a contractor erect homes "in the middle of a cow pasture."

Wilson explained that the village now has an ordinance regulating the development of subdivisions, but the ordinance was enacted after construction in Lakeview Estates began. That ordinance requires roads be built in subdivisions before any homes are developed.

IN A RELATED matter, it was contended that Layman had covered up a drainage ditch in Lakeview Estates. Since then, Layman has again uncovered the ditch, but village officials feel he should install riprap, or a stone foundation along the walls of the ditch.

Efforts to reach Layman for comment were unsuccessful. Village officials said they also have had difficulty contacting him.

IN OTHER ACTION Tuesday, the village board approved five percent wage increases for the village's police officers.

The raises are retroactive to May 1. In addition, the police dispatchers' salaries were raised from $3.94 an hour to $4.30, beginning with the next pay period.

A RAISE granted to police dispatcher Bob Morgan July 9 was rescinded because Morgan's salary is limited while he collects disability pay. He will be paid $250 per month as a dispatcher.

The trustees passed a motion allowing all trustees to collect $50 per diem pay for meetings. Some of the trustees were receiving only $30 per diem, and village attorney Keith Jensen advised the board that all trustees should be paid the same per diem.

Treasurer Ray Gaudette reported the village's 1984-85 audit had been completed.

"THE NET results are that all funds are 'in the black,' and all funds budgeted came in within the budget," he said.

Quarry effects to be tested

By SUSANNE INDELICATO

PONTON BEACH — A geologist will be hired to test the effects the Quarry Lake Sand Inc. quarry may have on homes in the area.

The Pontoon Beach Village Board of Trustees Tuesday agreed to a contract with Ron Yarbrough of Geo-Technical Associates, consulting geologists in Collinsville. The board stipulated that the village would spend no more than $3,000 for the testing.

YARBROUGH, who met with Trustee Lou Whitsell, said he would set nine or ten concrete structures about 300 feet apart behind the quarry property to monitor possible land subsidence. The project will be conducted by graduate students of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, where Yarbrough is a professor.

Yarbrough said his findings would hold up in court should the village decide to take legal action.

"Nothing we did in the past would ever hold up in court," Whitsell said. "We didn't know anything. But over a period of a year, we might be able to tell something."

AFTER A VISUAL inspection of the area, Yarbrough said, if there is any subsidence due to the quarry, it would come from the quarry's side. He also told Whitsell he is interested in the status of sand under surface soil.

Whitsell said Yarbrough told there was no immediate danger to homes, and testing could determine when a danger might arise.

YARBROUGH is the second consultant to issue an opinion on the quarry. Geotechnical engineer Darrell Wolf of John Mathes and Associates in Columbia, Ill., surveyed the quarry lake June 19. He told Pontoon Beach officials that from a visual inspection of the site he determined there was no danger to homes along Iris Avenue. He felt sand was not being sucked from under the topsoil surrounding the lake.

WHITSELL OBJECTED to Wolf's opinion because John Mathes and Associates had performed work for Quality Sand in the past.

Whitsell said Yarbrough's findings would hold up in court should the village decide to take legal action.

Bruening is moving from E. St. Louis

GRANITE CITY — No new jobs will be created for now as Bruening Bearings moves its East St. Louis distribution here.

The company hopes to have the business open sometime in September. With the seven employees currently working in East St. Louis moving here.

"I don't see any more jobs being created at the present time," said Jim McClain, regional manager for Bruening, headquartered in St. Louis. "It doesn't take that many people to operate a distributor organization like this one. However, if market demands indicate a need, something could happen in the future."

CONSTRUCTION of the building is nearly complete at Rock Road and Division Street in West Granite City.

"We thought the geographic location was a little better for our needs in Granite City," McClain said. "And we see the potential for growth there with the industrial park."

"But the big reason was the size of our operation. We were beginning to feel a little crowded in East St. Louis, and we didn't want to expand any more in a building that was already energy inefficient."

McClain said Bruening will have almost one acre of land in Granite City. Construction is estimated to cost $152,000.

For Rosine, marriage was

A personal tragedy

By JACK C. VENTIMIGLIA
Executive Editor

"To me, he was somebody that you read about or saw on TV... Very, very charming. I mean, he could sit here and tell you something — he could tell you a lie, and you know it's a lie, but he could make you believe it."

She lit a cigarette as she remembered the prelude to a marriage tragedy.

"Jealousy... he was very possessive," she recalled. "I was flattered. I thought, 'Well, he really must care about me to be that jealous.'"

Rosine Clarton continued to talk openly, her dark eyes reflecting no bitterness, only hurt.

"About a month after we were married, I really started getting worse," said the 45-year-old Granite City, explaining the result of a disagreement that went too far. His fist came down against the left side of her face, knocking her head against a door.

The blow caused a bruise, a stain going deeper than her skin. She was confused. All her life she'd been sheltered by her father. Her first husband of more than 20 years had continued to shelter her, but he'd died. Now, her second husband, the man who seemed so charming, was hurting her.

Filing for divorce was difficult, especially for a woman of 40. Like so many other women in similar situations, she believed his promise to stop drinking, to stop beating her. She went back to him. And, like so many other women, she found her husband lied.

"One time he beat me up so bad that I had cracked ribs. I spent five days in the hospital and lost another job because of that."

Still, the struggling, dangerous relationship might have lasted had she not found her jealous husband in bed with another woman.

Leaving was complicated, Rosine said.

"I didn't have any training to support myself since I'd just been a housewife all my life," she said, almost apologetically. "I couldn't get a job. No one was going to hire a 40-year-old woman when there were 20-year-old men out of work. I just couldn't find work at all."

There was no place in the Quad-City Area to go for help, she explained.

Belleville has the Woman's Crisis Shelter, but it wasn't close enough. Fortunately, she said, Alton had a place that provided help.

"I don't know what I would have done if it hadn't been for Oasis," she said. "I went there with a t-shirt, jeans and a pair of tennis shoes. That was all I had."

The Alton shelter provided the essentials for the Granite City resident to put her life together.

They provided food, a place to stay, clothing, and counseling services. In group counseling sessions, she learned to cope from other women who had lived through "worse situations than mine."

The marriage tragedy has not hardened Rosine. True, she is making it on her own, working to care for herself. But, she said she has found a man she can trust and love, and who gives the same in return. They are engaged.

For Rosine, the dark clouds are gone.

(The woman's name in this story was changed due to legal considerations. She would have allowed the name to be used. However, her former husband has not been convicted of a crime in connection with his domestic activities.)

Dealing with domestic violence issue tough job for area police departments

"They're mad. We let them sign a complaint, and then the next day they want it dropped."

Chet Ballew,
Pontoon Beach
Police Chief

Police should stay out of a "private matter," make an arrest, prepare paper work and then the charge is dropped.

Pontoon Beach Police Chief Chet Ballew explained the problem of women dropping charges this way: "They're mad. We let them sign the complaint, and then the next day they want it dropped."

But when women are beaten, area police continue to answer calls. They must. The Illinois Domestic Violence Act requires such calls be answered. Something else, too, may help urge area policemen to answer those calls — the possibility of saving a life.

Forty percent of the women murdered in this country are killed by their husbands or lovers, and Reed said there have been cases in Venice where "knives and things have been involved" in domestic fights.

In Venice, as anywhere else, a weapon can be pointed both ways. In 1983, two men were killed during domestic conflicts in Venice, Bart Bell and Harold Wright.

In both cases, the court pressed no charges against the women involved. Justifiable homicide was ruled.

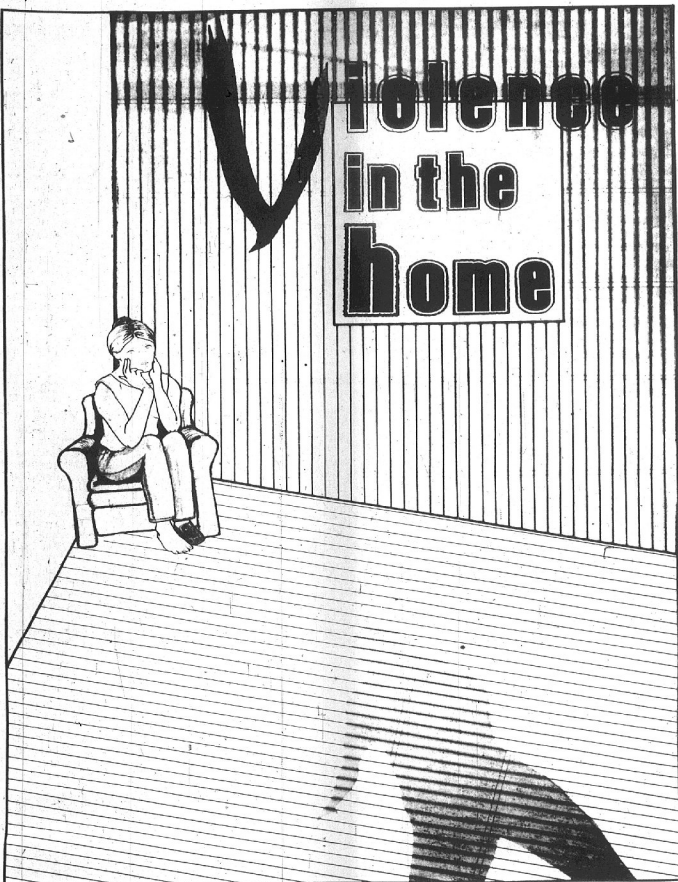

Krause said women should be aware the law can protect them from abusive mates. He said they should use the law, and follow through with charges when they call police.

Krause said a woman can seek an Order of Protection if her husband is beating her. The court order, among several possibilities, could forbid further abuse, order the abuser not to enter the home, award temporary child custody, prohibit child stealing and recommend counseling for the abuser.

In some cases, failure of an abuser to submit to the Order of Protection could result in an arrest, a fine and imprisonment.

When Quad-Cities Area law enforcement officials handle domestic violence calls, they never know what they'll encounter. It could be a scuffle with an abuser or a woman holding a knife — but they know their duty is to protect and to serve.

"They've (women) got a right to be protected from further abuse," Krause said. "They've got a right to press criminal charges against the abuser."

"ONE TIME he beat me up so bad I had cracked ribs. I spent five days in the hospital and lost another job because of that."

Phoenix Crisis Center Inc. rising to the needs of Quad-City women

A will to help is sometimes enough.

It has to be for the Phoenix Crisis Center Inc.

The fledgling organization is still in the nest, nursing meager private contributions to do the work of helping battered women.

To date, they are waiting to receive forms needed to apply for tax-exempt status, they have received about $800 in donations from a barbecue and dance, and the Pontoon Beach Lionses contributed $200.

With little to work with, the organization has had a one-person-crisis-intervention staff. Carol Chiappa, working since mid-May in a tiny one-room office to help women find a way out of abusive situations.

The organization has done it on almost nothing, with Chiappa working at less than half the minimum wage all day and at all hours of the night to do the job.

Without a complaint.

With little money, according to Phoenix Treasurer Barbara Reedy, making it is difficult, but not impossible. Reedy and other Phoenix volunteers are looking beyond what they see to what they believe.

"We just trust in the Lord," she said, adding for the record the group is not religiously affiliated.

Reedy does not mean that such a worthy organization is not finding

"This is a new group, I think our hearts are in the right place — we trust in the Lord, all of us."

$100 checks coming in the mail each day — or any days, for that matter.

"This is to be expected," she said of the cool financial support. "This is a new group. I think our hearts are in the right place — we trust in the Lord, all of us."

Chiappa is thankful for the small office donated by Coordinated Youth Services. The office has a telephone paid for with the meager funds generated by Phoenix, and the phone operates as a "hotline," though it really isn't meant to be one.

She said an actual hotline could be received through a grant from the United Way by the end of July and could be operable by August's end. By that time, she said, volunteers will be specially trained to answer domestic violence calls.

The hotline, if received, would be a help, but the big need in the Quad-Cities Area is for a place to shelter abused women, Chiappa said. None exists here and women have to leave the area to find a center to protect them and their children from abusive mates.

Anywhere from $50,000 to $150,000 is needed for such a facility, which would provide bedrooms and social services to help women move from being mentally and physically abused to being adjusted members of society.

Reedy said she has no idea where the money will come from for the shelter, but she has no doubt the money will come.

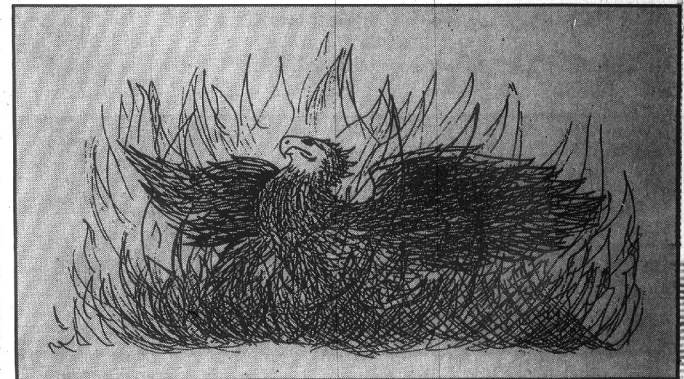

"It takes quite awhile to get people behind you," Reedy said. "I think it's just going to take time."

In the meantime, the hope is that by the year's end contributions will keep the shelter going and that a way to get some government support through grants will be found. And, Reedy said, another dance is tentatively planned for the fall to raise a few more dollars.

The group is bent on making it, to help those who need it, no matter what odds are against them.

With attitudes such as Reedy's, and dedication such as Chiappa's, and all those who help the center, there will be a way to help wipe away the ashes of despair into which some area women have fallen.

They will find hope to be no longer mentally and physically battered, but instead, like the Phoenix, rising.

THE PHOENIX, symbol of hope for Quad-City women.

Wife beating considered to be as traumatic as being raped

By JACK C. VENTIMIGLIA
Executive editor

"Everyone has the right to self-preservation — the right to live a life with self-esteem," according to Carol Chiappa.

But some men disagree. Assault cases last year involving men beating their mates came to 68 in Granite City, 52 in Madison, 54 in Venice and 53 in Pontoon Beach.

Many of the women are beaten more than once. They have no place to go, no money, no hope and plenty of fear, Carol said.

Carol represents a group of people offering help to such women. Calling themselves Phoenix Crisis Center Inc., the group provides a free resource for Quad-City Area women who want to find an alternative to mental and physical harassment by their mates.

CAROL CHIAPPA

Dialing 451-1008 puts the area's battered women in touch with Phoenix, which offers 24-hour answers to pressing questions such as where women will live if they leave home, how they will eat and how to be spared further abuse.

About four abused women per week have called the facility since it opened in May, and five women had been tormented to the point that they left their homes.

Carol said Phoenix would like to see families remain together, but sometimes women have no choice except to get away from the violence.

"Most of them are crying," Carol said. "Generally, there's a lot of fear, a lot of anxiety — fearful for their lives. Most victims live in constant fear."

"It's a trauma similar to rape, except that it's never-ending. As a result of a very present threat of assault, there's anxiety, fear bordering on panic for many of the victims."

The work is necessary, and sometimes frustrating. Carol explained some women want to leave dangerous living conditions, but they do not want to leave the Quad-City Area.

"A lot of women refuse to leave the area," she said. "Their major issue here is, 'I don't want to take my child away from school, from his church, from his friends.'"

"They want something local, mostly because they are concerned for their children."

No local facility exists, and while Phoenix volunteers work to find money to establish a place, abused women and their children may be forced to choose between going to the Oasis shelter in Alton for help or continuing to live dangerously with their mates.

"I feel like my hands are tied," Carol conceded. "There's so little we can do."

Like other area shelters, Phoenix plans to establish a local facility for battered women where clients will have a safe place to stay temporarily, get counseling to find jobs and build self-worth, receive public aid, have access to legal aid; children will be educated and counseled; and husbands, if they desire, will be notified of counseling to help rebuild the marriage.

The frustration is mild so long as there is hope for a facility in this area. Carol said grants and local donations are needed to build the facility, but she believes in God and in people. Both, she believes, will answer the need.

And something else, too, makes the long hours and sometimes sleepless nights of semi-volunteer work worth the effort.

"There was a hysterical plea for help from a pregnant woman whose husband's violent actions had driven her out of their home," Carol said. "When talking to her at the police station, she was incoherent and terrified for her life and the life of her child. We placed her in a local safe house."

"The day we took her to the airport, she clung to me and she laughed and cried in my arms and she said, 'You all have saved my life and gave me strength to go on.'"

"And that made it all worthwhile."
